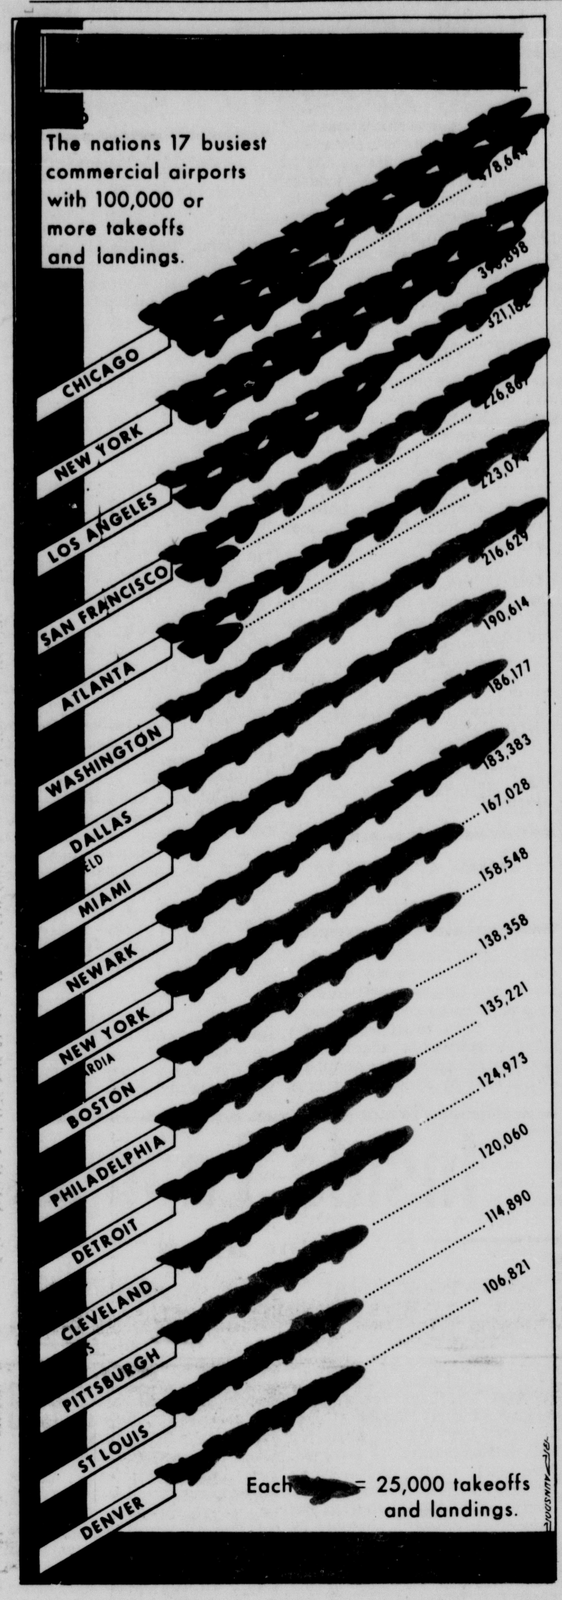
OUR 56TH YEAR | 10¢ PER COPY | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1967 | NUMBER 313



WASHINGTON (AP) -- Our skies are getting more crowded every day.

Each day more people board from airliners, more are taking flying lessons, more airplanes are winging from factories.

For 1967, passenger traffic on commercial airliners will total 128 million. Ten years from now, the Federal Aviation Agency estimates, there will be 352-million passengers -- nearly three times the present number. A Senate committee heard testimony that the figure may even be 450 million.

The growth in non-airline, non-military flying will be just as spectacular. In 1965, Manufacturers of civil aircraft produced 12,646 planes. The figure in 1966 was 16,404 -- valued at more than $2 billion.

A forecast of 104,000 non-airline, non-military planes in 1967 is sure to be exceeded. By 1977, that total is expected to be 180,000 and will include 8,000 turbine aircraft, compared with 950 this year.

In the next three years the first jumbos -- airliners that carry nearly 500 passengers -- will take to the skies. Despite the increased seating space on the jumbos, the forecast is that airliners will increase from this year's 2,337 to 2,875 in 1972 and 3,500 in 1977.

All this has caused mounting concern for ground facilities to handle them, safety facilities to guide them, airports to land them.

The FAA has ordered a sweeping revision of air safety rules including easier access to exits -- aimed at saving more lives in airline crashes. The new rules are expected to cost the airlines and manufacturers almost $2 billion in the next few years, but passengers are expected to pay most of the cost.

Airport development costs are expected to run $6 billion in the next 10 years. President Johnson has called for a broad new program to cope with the rising air traffic. He has suggested a plan that would spend an estimated $5 billion for new facilities, equipment and additional personnnel and said he would ask the airlines, passengers and communities to share the cost of the program.

Even without any increase, flying is at a crisis point. There is mounting clamor to bar private planes from busy commercial airports where they have the same privileges as the big airline jets. But airports are paid for by all citizens and the air is free and some sort of compromise must be reached.

O'Hare Airport in Chicago, the nation's busiest, had 478,644 takeoffs and landings last year by airliners -- an average of 64 each hour. And it had 78,124 general aviation craft landing and taking off -- an average of 9 each hour.

John F. Kennedy International in New York had 390,898 takeoffs and landings last year, an average of 45 an hour.

In all, 17 airports had more than 100,000 airline takeoffs and landings last year. They were in order, O'Hare, Kennedy, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Atlanta, Washington National, Dallas Love Field, Miami, Newark, LaGuardia (N.Y.), Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit Wayne, Cleveland-Hopkins, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Denver.

Others in the top 25 are Kansas City Municipal, Honolulu, Minneapolis-St. Paul, New Orleans, Covington (Cincinnati), Baltimore International and San Juan (Puerto Rico) International.

The busiest airport in the country in total operations, behind Chicago's O'Hare, is Opa Locka, Fla. The airport, near Miami, handled 546,985 general aviation aircraft last year, an average of 62 an hour. It had virtually no airline traffic, however.

Johnson To View Flooding

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) -- Floodwaters continued to rise in this lower Rio Grande Valley city today as President Johnson prepared to fly to the hurricane-and flood-devastated area for an inspection.

The Arroyo Colorado, massive diversionary channel of the Rio Grande, dropped slowly while the river edged higher.

Beneath the floodwaters lay more than 800 of this usually sparkling town's finest residences, some wholly submerged.

Families from 50 to 60 homes in less affluent neighborhoods were the latest to be driven out Wednesday night as the runaway Arroyo Colorado made end runs around hurriedly constructed dikes.

Bulldozer crews threw up new dikes to stem the flow shortly after midnight.

Flooding worsened as water shot in small geysers from overtaxed storm sewers. Engineers said the waters of the Arroyo, into which rainfall usually drains, were backing into the city because there was nowhere else to go.

More businesses suffered and more streets were awash.

Poison Traced to Warehouse for Bakery Products

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) -- Authorities said today they traced a deadly insecticide blamed for Tijuana's mass poisoning to a warehouse from which bakery products were distributed.

Fifty bakeries were padlocked and posted with guards, and 35 persons linked to the supplier and bakeries were held for questioning. No charges were filed.

By the thousands Tijuana residents trooped across the U.S. border to San Ysidro, Calif., for bread.

Hector Valdivia, deputy district attorney, said the insecticide parathion was found stored in the warehouse near flour, sugar and possibly other ingredients used in foods. He refused to identify the warehouse.

Valdivia said, "Until we get test results from Sacramento, we won't know for sure what food or ingredient was poisoned."

In Sacramento, Calif., chemists of the California Department of Agriculture were examining samples of flour, bread and sugar flown from Tijuana.

Valdivia told a news conference Wednesday that 16 died from poisoning since Sunday. About 25 persons were hospitalized, and an estimated 300 others were released from hospitals and clincis after treatment.

Only two or three new cases of sickness were reported Wednesday, authorities said. The dead were all believed to be children under 10.

Medicare Fee Hike Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) -- John W. Gardner, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, notified the Senate today it appears that the monthly fee for the voluntary medicare program may have to be raised from $3 to $4.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., made public a letter from the secretary stating that Social Security actuaries have figured that increased costs in the program would require a boost in the fee to $3.80.

In addition, Gardner wrote, changes in the program in a House-passed Social Security bill now before the Senate Finance Committee would add another 20 cents, making a $4 total.

The $3 fee has been in effect since the program, part B of medicare covering chiefly doctors' bills, began July 1, 1966.

Lodge Denies Calling For Viet Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) -- "I never advocated a U.S. invasion of North Vietnam or a bombing of every conceivable target in the North," Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge declared in a statement Wednesday.

The former U.S. envoy to South Vietnam issued the statement after a report of remarks he had asked to be placed off the record was published in an account of his speech to the World Affairs Council of Pittsburgh.

"I never said that restrictions which limit U.S. forces to South Vietnam aid only the enemy," the statement continued. "Nor did I say anything about committing more American soldiers."

Train Kills Lilbourn Man

LILBOURN -- Alex Presnell, about 74, was killed when he was struck by a Frisco freight train about 12:25 p.m. Wednesday.

The train engineer, J. F. Slayden, said he saw what appeared to have been a large piece of paper between the rails, but as the engine approached, he saw that it was a man.

Slayden said he applied the emergency brake but that he could not stop the train in time to avoid hitting Presnell.

Coroner Leo Hedgepeth said Presnell walked along the tracks almost every day and suffered from blackouts. Presnell apparently blacked out Wednesday, Hedgepeth said.

The body was dragged about 75 feet down the tracks.

No inquest will be held.

The body is at Ponder Funeral Home.

DETROIT (AP)-- A suburban Taylor Township grandmother who doesn't like miniskirts demonstrated her feelings forcefully Wednesday-- by booting a 24-year-old art teacher at Brake Junior High School.

The target of the boot, pretty blonde Hope Palmer, was advised by the school superintendent to file an assault and battery charge.

The grandmother refused to divulge her name, but she reportedly had accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Atis Kalnins, and her granddaughter, Terry, 11, to school when she came upon miniskirted Miss Palmer.

"Hope was with part of her art class putting art objects into a display case. That's when the woman went up to her," said the superintendent, Simon Kachaterian.

He said that of about 800 teachers in the system, he believed Miss Palmer was the only one who wears a miniskirt.

"But she wears leotards under it," Kachaterian added.

U.S. Casualties Nearing 100,000

SAIGON (AP) -- The number of Americans killed in the Vietnam war dropped sharply last week but the total of U.S. casualties since the fighting began nearly seven years ago approached 100,000.

An unofficial survey of casualty figures for this year, gave no sign that last week's drop in casualties was part of any long-term decline.

The U.S. Command said 128 Americans were killed during the week, 1,434 were wounded and four were missing. A week earlier, U.S. forces lost 236 killed, 1774 wounded and four missing.

Most of last week's casualties occurred south of the demilitarized zone, where U.S. Marines blocking possible Communist invasion routes to the south have received nearly continuous shellings.

Henry Cabot Lodge, then the U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, had predicted in January that the percentage of U.S. casualties in Vietnam would drop this year.

"I believe the purely military part of the war, which is what the Americans are engaged in, will make tremendous progress in 1967 and that the percentage of American casualties will start declining," he told The Associated Press in an interview.

But official reports show that the rate of U.S. casualties has increased during the year. By March 31, the Pentagon reported U.S. combat deaths running 66 per cent above average weekly losses in 1966.

The number of Americans killed rose from 67 in the first week of January to a peak for 1967 of 337 killed in the week of May 14-20.

By unofficial tally, 13,493 Americans have been killed in Vietnam and 84,877 wounded, a total for the war of 98,370.

Following are Vietnam casualties from Jan. 1 in four week totals, except for two weeks in September. Figures for wounded were not given until April.

	Dead	Wounded
Jan. 1— Jan. [illegible]	465	—
Jan. 29— Feb. 25	559	—
Feb. 26— Mar. 25 ...	892	—
Mar. 26— Apr. 22 ...	666	5,197
Apr. 23— May 20 ...	1047	6,306
May. 21— June 17 ...	846	5,660
June 18— Jly. 15	892	5,400
Jly. 16— Aug. 12	506	4,147
Aug. 13— Sept. 9	632	5,039
Sept. 10— Sept. 23 ...	364	3,208

Casualty tolls for South Vietnamese, allied and Communist forces also declined last week. South Vietnamese military headquarters said 96 government troops were killed, 380 wounded and 15 missing, compared with 215 killed, 591 wounded and 47 missing a week earlier.

Other allied forces lost 37 killed, 88 wounded and none missing. A week earlier, the total had been 46 killed, 126 wounded and none missing.

The U.S. Command said enemy casualties included 1,134 killed, compared with 1,744 a week before.

Medicare Fee Hike Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) -- John W. Gardner, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, notified the Senate today it appears that the monthly fee for the voluntary medicare program may have to be raised from $3 to $4.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., made public a letter from the secretary stating that Social Security actuaries have figured that increased costs in the program would require a boost in the fee to $3.80.

In addition, Gardner wrote, changes in the program in a House-passed Social Security bill now before the Senate Finance Committee would add another 20 cents, making a $4 total.

The $3 fee has been in effect since the program, part B of medicare covering chiefly doctors' bills, began July 1, 1966.

Lead Mine Rail Link Dedicated

BUICK, Mo. (AP) -- A 32.7 mile long branch of the Frisco Railway was dedicated today. Officials said the new $5 million branch was a testimonial to the confidence the railroad had in the mining industry of Missouri's lead belt.

J.E. Gilliland, Frisco president, said lead mines, mills and a smelter in use or under development in the area are valued at $83 million.

About 175 persons attended the dedication of the new tracks which in most places uses concrete instead of wood rail ties. The group left St. Louis in a special six-car train for the ceremonies 133 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Lodge Denies Calling For Viet Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) -- "I never advocated a U.S. invasion of North Vietnam or a bombing of every conceivable target in the North," Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge declared in a statement Wednesday.

The former U.S. envoy to South Vietnam issued the statement after a report of remarks he had asked to be placed off the record was published in an account of his speech to the World Affairs Council of Pittsburgh.

"I never said that restrictions which limit U.S. forces to South Vietnam aid only the enemy," the statement continued. "Nor did I say anything about committing more American soldiers."

Train Kills Lilbourn Man

LILBOURN -- Alex Presnell, about 74, was killed when he was struck by a Frisco freight train about 12:25 p.m. Wednesday.

The train engineer, J. F. Slayden, said he saw what appeared to have been a large piece of paper between the rails, but as the engine approached, he saw that it was a man.

Slayden said he applied the emergency brake but that he could not stop the train in time to avoid hitting Presnell.

Coroner Leo Hedgepeth said Presnell walked along the tracks almost every day and suffered from blackouts. Presnell apparently blacked out Wednesday, Hedgepeth said.

The body was dragged about 75 feet down the tracks.

No inquest will be held.

The body is at Ponder Funeral Home.

The car was driven by Mrs. Elise Phillips, Oran. Mrs. Phillips told police the little girl ran across East Malone into the path of her car. She said she applied her brakes but couldn't avoid hitting her. No summons was issued.

Mrs. Phillips took the child to the hospital following the accident. The child then was taken to the doctor's office for treatment.

Three Mishaps On Slick Roads

Loyd Statler, 42, Oak Ridge, was taken to the Southeast Missouri hospital, Cape Girardeau, suffering from cuts, after he lost control of his 1962 two-ton truck on rain slick blacktop Wednesday morning, two miles east of Fruitland on highway J. His vehicle skidded, struck an embankment and overturned, the state patrol reported.

Fagyal applied his brakes, but the wet pavement caused him to slide into the parked vehicle.

Woodrow Dixon, 45, Wellston, was driving a 1963 Chevrelet pickup on Interstate 55, 10 miles south of Sikeston Wednesday afternoon, when he struck and killed a hog crossing the road.

The animal was owned by Percy White, route one, Matthews.

Teacher Wearing Miniskirt Booted By Grandmother

DETROIT (AP)-- A suburban Taylor Township grandmother who doesn't like miniskirts demonstrated her feelings forcefully Wednesday-- by booting a 24-year-old art teacher at Brake Junior High School.

The target of the boot, pretty blonde Hope Palmer, was advised by the school superintendent to file an assault and battery charge.

The grandmother refused to divulge her name, but she reportedly had accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Atis Kalnins, and her granddaughter, Terry, 11, to school when she came upon miniskirted Miss Palmer.

"Hope was with part of her art class putting art objects into a display case. That's when the woman went up to her," said the superintendent, Simon Kachaterian.

He said that of about 800 teachers in the system, he believed Miss Palmer was the only one who wears a miniskirt.

"But she wears leotards under it," Kachaterian added.

Miss Palmer said she intended to continue to wear what she wanted.

U.S. Casualties Nearing 100,000

SAIGON (AP) -- The number of Americans killed in the Vietnam war dropped sharply last week but the total of U.S. casualties since the fighting began nearly seven years ago approached 100,000.

An unofficial survey of casualty figures for this year, gave no sign that last week's drop in casualties was part of any long-term decline.

The U.S. Command said 128 Americans were killed during the week, 1,434 were wounded and four were missing. A week earlier, U.S. forces lost 236 killed, 1774 wounded and four missing.

Most of last week's casualties occurred south of the demilitarized zone, where U.S. Marines blocking possible Communist invasion routes to the south have received nearly continuous shellings.

Henry Cabot Lodge, then the U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, had predicted in January that the percentage of U.S. casualties in Vietnam would drop this year.

"I believe the purely military part of the war, which is what the Americans are engaged in, will make tremendous progress in 1967 and that the percentage of American casualties will start declining," he told The Associated Press in an interview.

But official reports show that the rate of U.S. casualties has increased during the year. By March 31, the Pentagon reported U.S. combat deaths running 66 per cent above average weekly losses in 1966.

The number of Americans killed rose from 67 in the first week of January to a peak for 1967 of 337 killed in the week of May 14-20.

By unofficial tally, 13,493 Americans have been killed in Vietnam and 84,877 wounded, a total for the war of 98,370.

Following are Vietnam casualties from Jan. 1 in four week totals, except for two weeks in September. Figures for wounded were not given until April.

	Dead	Wounded
Jan. 1— Jan. [illegible]	465	—
Jan. 29— Feb. 25	559	—
Feb. 26— Mar. 25	892	—
Mar. 26— Apr. 22	666	5,197
Apr. 23— May 20	1047	6,306
May. 21— June 17	846	5,660
June 18— Jly. 15	892	5,400
Jly. 16— Aug. 12	506	4,147
Aug. 13— Sept. 9	632	5,039
Sept. 10— Sept. 23	364	3,208

Casualty tolls for South Vietnamese, allied and Communist forces also declined last week. South Vietnamese military headquarters said 96 government troops were killed, 380 wounded and 15 missing, compared with 215 killed, 591 wounded and 47 missing a week earlier.

Other allied forces lost 37 killed, 88 wounded and none missing. A week earlier, the total had been 46 killed, 126 wounded and none missing.

The U.S. Command said enemy casualties included 1,134 killed, compared with 1,744 a week before.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Part of the reason for the delay by Congress in passing a needed federal income tax increase legislation is due to politics and cold feet but not all.

Congress has not in modern times tackled the nation's problems boldly except during the legislative honeymoon enjoyed by President Lyndon B. Johnson after entering the White House.

Secretary of the Treasury Fowler laid it on the line when he said Congress had a choice of pleasing constituents now or getting them in a jam later.

The near money panic aggravated by congressional timidity last year still is fresh in the public's mind. Inflationary and high interest pressures again are sending up storm warnings about the type of economic weather which lies ahead.

Republicans are making political capital of the situation by asking the President to cut domestic spending instead of demanding a tax increase. It won't work and they know it.

The most that can be expected from this tactic, aside from the political capital sought by Republicans, is that the President will apply his foot, however lightly, to the brakes.

He is committed to spending liberally. It's part of his effort to buy a Great Society, which has been endorsed at the polls by the American people.

The nonpolitical aspect of the barriers to a tax increase is represented by a fellow Democrat, who has a reputation for independent action, Chairman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas. Before Mills will give his stamp of approval he wants a blueprint from President Johnson showing how much money will be needed to pursue the war in Vietnam and just how he plans to spend it.

There has been a complete lack of candor on this subject by the administration in the past.

Hopefully, Mills will get the information he requires. The credibility gap is real and not just a political term. Democrats complain about it as much as Republicans.

But whether Mills is satisfied by presidential disclosure the American people need the tax increase for protection against inflation. The danger is not theoretical. It is real.

SEN. LONG'S UNION BOOSTERS

It is certainly interesting to note the calibre of organizations that have rallied to the reelection cause of Missouri's junior U. S. Senator, Edward V. Long. The organizations that have thus far wholeheartedly endorsed our junior Senator, without so much as knowing who his opponents will be, give loud testimony to the record of Sen. Long during his lackluster career in Washington.

Organizations that have rallied to the short end of the Long cause include these St. Louis unions:

Teamsters
Steamfitters
Electrical Workers
United Auto Workers
Sheet Metal Workers
Retail Clerks
Building Trade locals

The St. Louis locals plan to rally state-wide union support for the junior Senator, raise funds in his behalf, and generally rally behind him as he seeks another six years in Washington.

The question as to why these unions would support Sen. Long so early, in view of the fact that no one knows who will be opposing him, indicates the union chiefs believe no one else can do their bidding quite like Ed Long.

Sen. Long should make the most of his organized labor support; he certainly won't get such a rousing endorsement from the hundreds of thousands of Missourians who believe neither in Ed Long nor the cause of organized labor in St. Louis.

FAREWELL TO A BIT[illegible]

It's a wet, wet, wet, wet world. And cool, man, cool these September mornings.

Autumn is only four days away, but the grass won't stop growing. It hasn't all summer; the family mower never got its midsummer siesta. Trees and shrubs are lush with green foliage, and late flowers bloom prodigiously.

In Missouri the bluestem pastures still are rich with grass and thick with cattle. Across the Mid-West the corn is, in Oscar Hammerstein's phrase, as high as an elephant's eye.

To the west, on the high plains, sorghums grow thick and green, and broomcorn is more than head high. The sparse pastures of Eastern Colorado carry early summer populations of cattle. Down at Rocky Ford, growers complain that the flavor of their distinctive cantaloupes has been hurt by too much rain. And on both slopes of the Rockies motel and resort operators suffer as wet days and floods and rumors of floods keep tourists away.

While the northeastern corner of the country has suffered from heat and drought, it has been a strange summer in a diametrically opposite way in the Mid-West. In fact, it has scarcely been summer at all, as this part of the nation knows it. Wet and for the most part cool since early June, the weather has been, in the old California phrase, very unusual.

So, quite understandably, we may greet autumn next Saturday with something less than our usual eagerness. Summer's damp days may have interfered with our plans at times. But they have given the farmer and the city gardener lush growth and rich production of flower and fruit and grain. They have filled streams and lakes and ponds.

In some places they have become too much of a good thing, inundating lowlands and flooding towns. There have been times, admittedly when we yearned for the drier air and even the warmth of our traditional Mid-Western summer.

But on the whole the lush season now passing into history has been a delight, and we approach its end with regret.

FEW REALLY BELIEVE IT

Does the U. S. public, generally, believe the widespread charges of "police brutality"? The Gallup Poll, in a nationwide survey, found the answer was "No."

Among whites questioned, only 6 per cent thought that police brutality existed in their area. Among Negroes, 14 per cent believed the charges.

Said the poll: "The difference is not so great as might be expected following the wide publicity accorded alleged police brutality during the recent riots."

And yet such inciters as Stokely Carmichael and Rap Brown would have you believe that it is the worst -- but most Americans would like to see these two locked up, especially.

NEW YORK (AP) — Anonymous remarks that every boss gets tired of finding in the office suggestion box:

"Did you know that the guy who was boss here before you is alive and doing well in Argentina?"

"We've tried everything else— so why not put some gin in the water cooler and see if THAT'll pep up the office."

"It has been 23 years since I've had a merit raise. What are you trying to do— set a new course record for stinginess?"

"Roses are red, violets are blue, the senior vice president is a muttonhead— and so are you!"

"Little holes can sink the biggest ship, and being wasteful in small ways can wreck a business. For example, I have figured out that every one in the office could retire a year early if they would just use a single paper towel when they wash their hands, instead of two or three."

"This wouldn't be a bad place for a nice girl to work if only the executives wore boxing gloves. The next one is going to get sprayed with insect repellent— and I'm not joking."

"Hey, boss, I'm one of the cutest secretaries in the office, and I've had a crush on you for months and months. I would just love to paw your chubby cheeks and run my fingers through your thinning hair. Now, don't you wish you knew who I am?"

"Enclosed in this envelope is a dead cockroach. I killed it in the company cafeteria. I'm giving you fair warning: If I find another one there, I'm going to turn the company in to the Board of Health as a public menace."

"I love to listen to the piped-in music as I ride up to our floor in the automatic elevator. But they never play anything by Mozart. Does our firm have an anti-Mozart policy? If they'd just play a Mozart symphony, I'm sure I'd be happy riding up and down in the elevator all morning."

"There is only one surefire way of improving this joint, but who wants to be arrested for arson?"

"In the locker room I overhead one of the guys in the treasurer's office bragging that he had sneaked home three office pencils this week for his kids. How long are you going to let him get away with it?"

"There's nothing wrong with office morale that a 15 per cent Christmas bonus wouldn't improve."

Probably concerned both with an increase in payroll taxes and also with giving the Federal government price fixing powers, the nation's independent business proprietors are opposed to the bills now before the Congress to include the cost of prescription drugs among the medical expenses covered under Medicare.

In a nationwide vote conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, on bills introduced by Senator Joseph Montoya, N.M., and Representative John Dingell, Michigan, only 30 per cent voted in favor, 64 per cent registered opposition, with 6 per cent undecided.

In Missouri the vote was 66 per cent opposed, 28 per cent in favor, with 6 per cent undecided.

The proposed legislation would pay in addition to hospital and physician's bills for prescription drugs after the first $25. There is no limit set on the amount of drugs that would be paid for by Medicare, nor do the bills carry any provision for financing the cost of this addition to the program for which no estimates are made.

In addition, the identical bills would give the Federal government substantial control over the handling of prescription drugs. For one things, it is provided that at least once per year the government would publish a list of approved drugs and biologicals giving the generic name, and also the trade name under which these drugs are sold. Presumably any drug that did not carry government endorsement would not be included.

The government would also then determine how much these drugs should cost the druggist and set up a schedule of prices based on the druggist's cost of acquisition, plus what is described as a reasonable fee for professional services.

The proposed measure would also set up another bureau under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to be known as the Formulary Committee and also an advisory group to the Formulary Committee.

While the independent business proprietors, faced with high interest rates and increasing taxes undoubtedly oppose any measure which promises to further increase taxes while the Vietnam uncertainty exists, opposition to this proposal is also undoubtedly based on the traditional resistance toward government intervention into private business especially in the realm of price fixing.

MASS-MERCHANDISING PHILOSOPHY

Probably no business requires a higher degree of skill and knowledge than retail distribution. It is a business where homework and not luck is the requisite of success. Size or type of outlet has no bearing on the question of survival. As one retailing authority has pointed out, "The retailing race is not necessarily going to the giant but it is going to the expert."

Samuel Feinberg describes factors involved in successful merchandising: "Survival, let alone prosperity, depends on problems of competition, accessibility and attractiveness of main store and branches, image in the community, loyalty of the new generation of teens and young marrieds as well as older customers, access to needed capital, expense control, relations of executive and rank-and-file personnel, ability to draw competent young people into the organization -- and keep them, continuity of professional management, proper merchandising and research assistance."

Today's largest chain stores had their inception in the minds of pioneers in retailing -- pioneers who believed in the philosophy of mass merchandising -- moving the largest possible quantity of goods at minimum prices. They believed in giving the customer full value.

More often than not, these pioneers began business with little more than an idea and a determination to make good. Their names have become legendary in the annals of American business. The enterprises they started continue to prosper today for just one reason: they are run by experts who grew up in the retailing business -- a business that in general is today giving the consumer more for his money than ever before.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Ronald Reagan, Governor of California and potential candidate for President, today (Sept. 28) returns to the campus of his Alma Mater, this time not to lead a student strike or to stroll with a coed and a blanket on his arm, but to dedicate a library.

His return to the haunts of his youth at Eureka college in Illinois highlights the remarkable turnabout of the man who has suddenly jumped from B-picture status in Hollywood to A-political status on the presidential horizon. No candidate, no politician has changed more radically than the man elected governor partly by campaigning against student strikes at the University of California.

How radical is the change is best illustrated by the student strike which Reagan led at Eureka College. The governor tells about it in his book "Where's The Rest of Me?"

The students had demanded that Bert Wilson, President of Eureka, be fired; not unlike the manner in which California students demanded that their dean and president be fired. They presented a petition to the board of trustees, and when this turned down they held a mass meeting and struck. Reagan was chosen to be chief speaker at the strike rally.

"They came to their feet with a roar," Reagan wrote later. "Hell, with two more lines I could have had them riding through every middlesex village and farm."

Reagan was frank to the point of bringing blushes to some of the staid ladies who voted for him to be Governor of California.

KEGGING AT EUREKA

"Eureka had about 250 students," he wrote, "roughly 130 boys and 120 girls, enough to make any sex competition interesting.

"There was the custom of 'kegging,' " he went on. "Eureka was the only place I've known where you could walk down the street with your girl on one arm and your blanket on the other without starting a scandal... The cemetery was a three-minute walk from the campus. Everyone had a favorite grave, usually with a large enough tombstone to provide a backrest for two and a sizeable pool of shadow."

The Governor of California expounds at some length on life both at Eureka and in Hollywood, and his prose will make interesting reading if he ever really runs for President.

He tells the story of a lady who asked John Barrymore if he thought Romeo and Juliet had engaged in intimacies. Barrymore, according to Reagan, replied: "Madame, in the Chicago company definitely."

Regarding sex, Reagan comments: "Like the old adage about enforced romance -- when it's inevitable, relax and enjoy it."

Referring to Jane Russell who starred in "The Outlaw," he wrote: "The sheriff had found Billy the Kid with his girl. 'OK,' said Billy, as the mamacious figure of Jane Russell stood sideways between them, 'You stole my horse, I stole your girl.' The Sheriff nodded. 'Sure,' he replied, 'tit for tat.' "

Reagan also cities chapter and verse regarding his joining various left wing groups and serving as a sponsor on committees backing Helen Gahagan Douglas when she ran against Richard Nixon for the senate. Reagan was then a member of Americans for Democratic action and was constantly referred to favorably by peoples world, the left-wing newspaper which billed him as the star in the broadcast "Operation Terror," a series for "Mobilization For Democracy," labeled a Communist front by the house un-American activities committee.

In contrast, Reagan today serves as an adviser to the Young Americans for Freedom, the rightest of all right-wing youth groups, brands the graduated income tax as "Marxist" and referred to Sen. Tom Kuchel, the California Republican and senate whip as a political "traitor."

Thus speaks the many-sided Ronald Reagan, the man who now returns to the haunts of his youth, a changed but not necessarily wiser man.

UNFUNNY RATS

Rats were not as funny as house members last week voted by a 129-128 teller vote to reverse their action of July 20, when the house laughed off the bill to combat rats in city slums. For this reason, Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., moved that congressmen have five days to extend and revise their jokes.

However, the debate was heated. Rep. Frances Bolton, R-Ohio, who later voted for the $40 million fund, inquired, with tongue in cheek: "How much per rat?"

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., who proposed the rat control amendment jointly with Rep. Charles Mathias, R-Md., replied that the program would cost the taxpayers "about 40 cents a rat."

Rep. William Ryan, D-N.Y. reminded colleagues that they could no longer ridicule the problem as they did on July 20, when there was a "hilarious discussion of two-legged and four-legged rats, or discrimination against country rats in favor of city rats."

The dull but vocal Rep. Joel Broyhill, R-Va., shouted that the house was "caught in a wave of emotionalism and sheer political demagoguery." He urged colleagues to face up to "fiscal responsibility" by voting no.

Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., declared that his colleages were "reacting to pressure."

"Not very long ago," he said, "a group of protesters, two-legged rats, came down here from New York City to demonstrate, and the police had to drag them out of the galleries. I suppose a good many people are reacting to that pressure here today."

But young Andy Jacobs of Indianapolis, a supporter of rat control, commended the house on the "change in the nature of debate."

"Members are saying 'right now' instead of 'rat now.' I am wondering if this is not because the subject has come up suddenly.

"This time those who oppose rat extermination did not have the opportunity to prepare some good humor on the subject. Therefore, I ask unanimous consent that all members have five legislative days in which to revise and extend their jokes on this subject."

The United Nations General Assembly has met again in New York City in a session scheduled to last until December 19. All this could have been said about almost any past session of the UN General Assembly. But there is one unusual feature this year. The plain truth is that the UN has to be ineffective. The 122 nations have one vote each in the General Assembly. The Maldive Islands, with a population of only about 100,000, has the same voting power as the United States. SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL?

Justice Dept. Slows Up Probe of Missing Strike Funds.

New York: -- There's a district union scandal which the Justice Dept. and some of its intrepid attorneys are handling mighty gingerly, though it now appears that almost a quarter of a million dollars is involved. How much, really, no one knows because all the records positively were declared stolen just before they could be picked up by the government.

True, it would take the man from U.N.C.L.E. and James Bond, with an assist from an old-timer called Sherlock Holmes, to unravel the mystery because thousands of chicken eggs, hundreds of turkeys, Copacabana night chits, Florida hotels, the Roosevelt and Yonkers race-tracks, unvouchered checks for scores of thousands of dollars and stupefying cases of liquor are involved.

But so is the reputation of a militant union known as the International Union of Electrical Workers and its young, new-breed president Paul Jennings who is on the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee, which says thou shalt not covet thy union's treasury.

There is no doubt of Mr. Jennings integrity. It is the integrity of the labor movement and two officials who headed the union's huge District Three (New York-New Jersey) - which holds one-third of the organization's membership -- that is up for grabs.

For weeks now I have been reviewing reports and records of what appears to be one of the most colossal mishandlings of district funds in labor's history.

What comes out of all this vast accounting work reaches further than $800 and $700 and $500 checks being made out in Florida for expenses allegedly disbursed by the District President Milton Weihrauch at Florida hotels during an AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting -- at which there does not appear to be any reason for his attendance.

More is involved here than "round figure" checks, generally unvouchered, for sums such as $5,000 and $4,800 and $1,600, etc. More is involved here than the fact that many checks were endorsed by mysterious persons or friends of the District President Weihrauch and Treasurer, Joe Iozzi.

More even than the District bookkeeper endorsing five checks totaling more than $10,000 for purposes she never knew.

More is involved than Mr. Weihrauch's telling his board that his life had been threatened -- and therefore that his life insurance policy, paid for by the union, should be raised. This increased its loan value, though generally such insurances should be term policies.

More here is involved than huge restaurant tabs ($11,000) being signed at a fine Newark, N.J., restaurant, and in Atlantic City, or the generous use of an American Express credit card.

What is, indeed, of deep concern is the auditor's report, made up of whatever could be gleaned from banks and merchants, etc., gas stations, travel expense payments, etc., that only $141,000 is traceable. Also, "some $60,000 in checks were made out to 'cash' sometimes unsupported by vouchers, or where vouchers were present, they contained general categories like 'strike assistance,' 'local assistance,' or 'meetings' without mentioning even the name of the local union, never mind the alleged purposes of these checks."

Included among the checks made out to cash were the five totaling more than $10,000 endorsed by the bookkeeper, checks for more than $8,000 made payable to Milton Weihrauch and for more than $54,000 to Iozzi unsupported by vouchers, or meagerly explained.

There also were checks made out to cash, "strike assistance" and "meetings."

Yet many of the locals which had been on strike report they got mightily little out of all these funds. One local reports it got 150 to 200 turkeys. Another states it received 500 turkeys and 1,500 dozen eggs. It was supposed to have received $16,000. Still another reports donations of 1,000 chickens, and 1,000 eggs each week for seven weeks and 400 turkeys on Thanksgiving and Christmas during a stoppage. It allegedly received -- according to the District records -- $27,500. There was a district check for $1,000.

There also was a check, unvouchered, to a poultry firm from District Three, for $7,000.

Some of the locals who were supposed to have received the District strike relief funds said they got nothing.

Thus the issue is: What happened to the most sacred of such fraternal support, strike relief, while union brothers and sisters were on the picket lines, payless.

Brother Weihrauch is being defended in the intra-union developments by the eminent counselor Ed Bennett Williams. This is unusual. Handsome Ed Williams rarely takes an unimportant case.

Important, it is. The basic issue is far more than high living. Or making a juggle of financial records. If Mr. Weihrauch has a case he should say so. The public and the rank and file have the right to know what happens to such funds on the strike front. How does a militant district union's image become today's picture of Dorian Gray?

Unless this strange handling of funds is cleared up by the labor movement as well as a grand jury, what value ever again will high-sounding statements of ethics have in the marketplace where we all meet -- the labor leader, the rank and file, the employer and the people.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Part of the reason for the delay by Congress in passing a needed federal income tax increase legislation is due to politics and cold feet but not all.

Congress has not in modern times tackled the nation's problems boldly except during the legislative honeymoon enjoyed by President Lyndon B. Johnson after entering the White House.

Secretary of the Treasury Fowler laid it on the line when he said Congress had a choice of pleasing constituents now or getting them in a jam later.

The near money panic aggravated by congressional timidity last year still is fresh in the public's mind. Inflationary and high interest pressures again are sending up storm warnings about the type of economic weather which lies ahead.

Republicans are making political capital of the situation by asking the President to cut domestic spending instead of demanding a tax increase. It won't work and they know it.

The most that can be expected from this tactic, aside from the political capital sought by Republicans, is that the President will apply his foot, however lightly, to the brakes.

He is committed to spending liberally. It's part of his effort to buy a Great Society, which has been endorsed at the polls by the American people.

The nonpolitical aspect of the barriers to a tax increase is represented by a fellow Democrat, who has a reputation for independent action, Chairman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas. Before Mills will give his stamp of approval he wants a blueprint from President Johnson showing how much money will be needed to pursue the war in Vietnam and just how he plans to spend it.

There has been a complete lack of candor on this subject by the administration in the past.

Hopefully, Mills will get the information he requires. The credibility gap is real and not just a political term. Democrats complain about it as much as Republicans.

But whether Mills is satisfied by presidential disclosure the American people need the tax increase for protection against inflation. The danger is not theoretical. It is real.

SEN. LONG'S UNION BOOSTERS

It is certainly interesting to note the calibre of organizations that have rallied to the re-election cause of Missouri's junior U. S. Senator, Edward V. Long. The organizations that have thus far wholeheartedly endorsed our junior Senator, without so much as knowing who his opponents will be, give loud testimony to the record of Sen. Long during his lackluster career in Washington.

Organizations that have rallied to the short end of the Long cause include these St. Louis unions:

Teamsters
Steamfitters
Electrical Workers
United Auto Workers
Sheet Metal Workers
Retail Clerks
Building Trade locals

The St. Louis locals plan to rally state-wide union support for the junior Senator, raise funds in his behalf, and generally rally behind him as he seeks another six years in Washington.

The question as to why these unions would support Sen. Long so early, in view of the fact that no one knows who will be opposing him, indicates the union chiefs believe no one else can do their bidding quite like Ed Long.

Sen. Long should make the most of his organized labor support; he certainly won't get such a rousing endorsement from the hundreds of thousands of Missourians who believe neither in Ed Long nor the cause of organized labor in St. Louis.

FAREWELL TO A BIT PART

It's a wet, wet, wet, wet world. And cool, man, cool these September mornings.

Autumn is only four days away, but the grass won't stop growing. It hasn't all summer; the family mower never got its midsummer siesta. Trees and shrubs are lush with green foliage, and late flowers bloom prodigiously.

In Missouri the bluestem pastures still are rich with grass and thick with cattle. Across the Mid-West the corn is, in Oscar Hammerstein's phrase, as high as an elephant's eye.

To the west, on the high plains, sorghums grow thick and green, and broomcorn is more than head high. The sparse pastures of Eastern Colorado carry early summer populations of cattle. Down at Rocky Ford, growers complain that the flavor of their distinctive cantaloupes has been hurt by too much rain. And on both slopes of the Rockies motel and resort operators suffer as wet days and floods and rumors of floods keep tourists away.

While the northeastern corner of the country has suffered from heat and drought, it has been a strange summer in a diametrically opposite way in the Mid-West. In fact, it has scarcely been summer at all, as this part of the nation knows it. Wet and for the most part cool since early June, the weather has been, in the old California phrase, very unusual.

So, quite understandably, we may greet autumn next Saturday with something less than our usual eagerness. Summer's damp days may have interfered with our plans at times. But they have given the farmer and the city gardener lush growth and rich production of flower and fruit and grain. They have filled streams and lakes and ponds.

In some places they have become too much of a good thing, inundating lowlands and flooding towns. There have been times, admittedly when we yearned for the drier air and even the warmth of our traditional Mid-Western summer.

But on the whole the lush season now passing into history has been a delight, and we approach its end with regret.

FEW REALLY BELIEVE IT

Does the U. S. public, generally, believe the widespread charges of "police brutality"? The Gallup Poll, in a nationwide survey, found the answer was "No."

Among whites questioned, only 6 per cent thought that police brutality existed in their area. Among Negroes, 14 per cent believed the charges.

Said the poll: "The difference is not so great as might be expected following the wide publicity accorded alleged police brutality during the recent riots."

And yet such inciters as Stokely Carmichael and Rap Brown would have you believe that it is the worst -- but most Americans would like to see these two locked up, especially.

NEW YORK (AP) — Anonymous remarks that every boss gets tired of finding in the office suggestion box:

"Did you know that the guy who was boss here before you is alive and doing well in Argentina?"

"We've tried everything else— so why not put some gin in the water cooler and see if THAT'll pep up the office."

"It has been 23 years since I've had a merit raise. What are you trying to do— set a new course record for stinginess?"

"Roses are red, violets are blue, the senior vice president is a muttonhead— and so are you!"

"Little holes can sink the biggest ship, and being wasteful in small ways can wreck a business. For example, I have figured out that every one in the office could retire a year early if they would just use a single paper towel when they wash their hands, instead of two or three."

"This wouldn't be a bad place for a nice girl to work if only the executives wore boxing gloves. The next one is going to get sprayed with insect repellent— and I'm not joking."

"Hey, boss, I'm one of the cutest secretaries in the office, and I've had a crush on you for months and months. I would just love to paw your chubby cheeks and run my fingers through your thinning hair. Now, don't you wish you knew who I am?"

"Enclosed in this envelope is a dead cockroach. I killed it in the company cafeteria. I'm giving you fair warning: If I find another one there, I'm going to turn the company in to the Board of Health as a public menace."

"I love to listen to the piped-in music as I ride up to our floor in the automatic elevator. But they never play anything by Mozart. Does our firm have an anti-Mozart policy? If they'd just play a Mozart symphony, I'm sure I'd be happy riding up and down in the elevator all morning."

"There is only one surefire way of improving this joint, but who wants to be arrested for arson?"

"In the locker room I overhead one of the guys in the treasurer's office bragging that he had sneaked home three office pencils this week for his kids. How long are you going to let him get away with it?"

"There's nothing wrong with office morale that a 15 per cent Christmas bonus wouldn't improve."

Probably concerned both with an increase in payroll taxes and also with giving the Federal government price fixing powers, the nation's independent business proprietors are opposed to the bills now before the Congress to include the cost of prescription drugs among the medical expenses covered under Medicare.

In a nationwide vote conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, on bills introduced by Senator Joseph Montoya, N.M., and Representative John Dingell, Michigan, only 30 per cent voted in favor, 64 per cent registered opposition, with 6 per cent undecided.

In Missouri the vote was 66 per cent opposed, 28 per cent in favor, with 6 per cent undecided.

The proposed legislation would pay in addition to hospital and physician's bills for prescription drugs after the first $25. There is no limit set on the amount of drugs that would be paid for by Medicare, nor do the bills carry any provision for financing the cost of this addition to the program for which no estimates are made.

In addition, the identical bills would give the Federal government substantial control over the handling of prescription drugs. For one things, it is provided that at least once per year the government would publish a list of approved drugs and biologicals giving the generic name, and also the trade name under which these drugs are sold. Presumably any drug that did not carry government endorsement would not be included.

The government would also then determine how much these drugs should cost the druggist and set up a schedule of prices based on the druggist's cost of acquisition, plus what is described as a reasonable fee for professional services.

The proposed measure would also set up another bureau under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to be known as the Formulary Committee and also an advisory group to the Formulary Committee.

While the independent business proprietors, faced with high interest rates and increasing taxes undoubtedly oppose any measure which promises to further increase taxes while the Vietnam uncertainty exists, opposition to this proposal is also undoubtedly based on the traditional resistance toward government intervention into private business especially in the realm of price fixing.

MASS-MERCHANDISING PHILOSOPHY

Probably no business requires a higher degree of skill and knowledge than retail distribution. It is a business where homework and not luck is the requisite of success. Size or type of outlet has no bearing on the question of survival. As one retailing authority has pointed out, "The retailing race is not necessarily going to the giant but it is going to the expert."

Samuel Feinberg describes factors involved in successful merchandising: "Survival, let alone prosperity, depends on problems of competition, accessibility and attractiveness of main store and branches, image in the community, loyalty of the new generation of teens and young marrieds as well as older customers, access to needed capital, expense control, relations of executive and rank-and-file personnel, ability to draw competent young people into the organization -- and keep them, continuity of professional management, proper merchandising and research assistance."

Today's largest chain stores had their inception in the minds of pioneers in retailing -- pioneers who believed in the philosophy of mass merchandising -- moving the largest possible quantity of goods at minimum prices. They believed in giving the customer full value.

More often than not, these pioneers began business with little more than an idea and a determination to make good. Their names have become legendary in the annals of American business. The enterprises they started continue to prosper today for just one reason: they are run by experts who grew up in the retailing business -- a business that in general is today giving the consumer more for his money than ever before.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Ronald Reagan, Governor of California and potential candidate for President, today (Sept. 28) returns to the campus of his Alma Mater, this time not to lead a student strike or to stroll with a coed and a blanket on his arm, but to dedicate a library.

His return to the haunts of his youth at Eureka college in Illinois highlights the remarkable turnabout of the man who has suddenly jumped from B-picture status in Hollywood to A-political status on the presidential horizon. No candidate, no politician has changed more radically than the man elected governor partly by campaigning against student strikes at the University of California.

How radical is the change is best illustrated by the student strike which Reagan led at Eureka College. The governor tells about it in his book "Where's The Rest of Me?"

The students had demanded that Bert Wilson, President of Eureka, be fired; not unlike the manner in which California students demanded that their dean and president be fired. They presented a petition to the board of trustees, and when this turned down they held a mass meeting and struck. Reagan was chosen to be chief speaker at the strike rally.

"They came to their feet with a roar," Reagan wrote later. "Hell, with two more lines I could have had them riding through every middlesex village and farm."

Reagan was frank to the point of bringing blushes to some of the staid ladies who voted for him to be Governor of California.

KEGGING AT EUREKA

"Eureka had about 250 students," he wrote, "roughly 130 boys and 120 girls, enough to make any sex competition interesting.

"There was the custom of 'kegging,' " he went on. "Eureka was the only place I've known where you could walk down the street with your girl on one arm and your blanket on the other without starting a scandal... The cemetery was a three - minute walk from the campus. Everyone had a favorite grave, usually with a large enough tombstone to provide a backrest for two and a sizeable pool of shadow."

The Governor of California expounds at some length on life both at Eureka and in Hollywood, and his prose will make interesting reading if he ever really runs for President.

He tells the story of a lady who asked John Barrymore if he thought Romeo and Juliet had engaged in intimacies. Barrymore, according to Reagan, replied: "Madame, in the Chicago company definitely."

Regarding sex, Reagan comments: "Like the old adage about enforced romance -- when it's inevitable, relax and enjoy it."

Referring to Jane Russell who starred in "The Outlaw," he wrote: "The sheriff had found Billy the Kid with his girl. 'OK,' said Billy, as the mamacious figure of Jane Russell stood sideways between them, 'You stole my horse, I stole your girl.' The Sheriff nodded. 'Sure,' he replied, 'tit for tat.' "

Reagan also cities chapter and verse regarding his joining various left wing groups and serving as a sponsor on committees backing Helen Gahagan Douglas when she ran against Richard Nixon for the senate. Reagan was then a member of Americans for Democratic action and was constantly referred to favorably by peoples world, the left-wing newspaper which billed him as the star in the broadcast "Operation Terror," a series for "Mobilization For Democracy," labeled a Communist front by the house un-American activities committee.

In contrast, Reagan today serves as an adviser to the Young Americans for Freedom, the rightest of all right-wing youth groups, brands the graduated income tax as "Marxist" and referred to Sen. Tom Kuchel, the California Republican and senate whip as a political "traitor."

Thus speaks the many - sided Ronald Reagan, the man who now returns to the haunts of his youth, a changed but not necessarily wiser man.

UNFUNNY RATS

Rats were not as funny as house members last week voted by a 129-128 teller vote to reverse their action of July 20, when the house laughed off the bill to combat rats in city slums. For this reason, Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., moved that congressmen have five days to extend and revise their jokes.

However, the debate was heated. Rep. Frances Bolton, R-Ohio, who later voted for the $40 million fund, inquired, with tongue in cheek: "How much per rat?"

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., who proposed the rat control amendment jointly with Rep. Charles Mathias, R-Md., replied that the program would cost the taxpayers "about 40 cents a rat."

Rep. William Ryan, D-N.Y. reminded colleagues that they could no longer ridicule the problem as they did on July 20, when there was a "hilarious discussion of two - legged and four-legged rats, or discrimination against country rats in favor of city rats."

The dull but vocal Rep. Joel Broyhill, R-Va., shouted that the house was "caught in a wave of emotionalism and sheer political demagoguery." He urged colleagues to face up to "fiscal responsibility" by voting no.

Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., declared that his colleages were "reacting to pressure."

"Not very long ago," he said, "a group of protesters, two-legged rats, came down here from New York City to demonstrate, and the police had to drag them out of the galleries. I suppose a good many people are reacting to that pressure here today."

But young Andy Jacobs of Indianapolis, a supporter of rat control, commended the house on the "change in the nature of debate."

"Members are saying 'right now' instead of 'rat now.' I am wondering if this is not because the subject has come up suddenly.

"This time those who oppose rat extermination did not have the opportunity to prepare some good humor on the subject. Therefore, I ask unanimous consent that all members have five legislative days in which to revise and extend their jokes on this subject."

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL?

Justice Dept. Slows Up Probe of Missing Strike Funds.

New York: -- There's a district union scandal which the Justice Dept. and some of its intrepid attorneys are handling mighty gingerly, though it now appears that almost a quarter of a million dollars is involved. How much, really, no one knows because all the records positively were declared stolen just before they could be picked up by the government.

True, it would take the man from U.N.C.L.E. and James Bond, with an assist from an old-timer called Sherlock Holmes, to unravel the mystery because thousands of chicken eggs, hundreds of turkeys, Copacabana night chits, Florida hotels, the Roosevelt and Yonkers racetracks, unvouchered checks for scores of thousands of dollars and stupefying cases of liquor are involved.

But so is the reputation of a militant union known as the International Union of Electrical Workers and its young, new-breed president Paul Jennings who is on the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee, which says thou shalt not covet thy union's treasury.

There is no doubt of Mr. Jennings integrity. It is the integrity of the labor movement and two officials who headed the union's huge District Three (New York-New Jersey) - which holds one-third of the organization's membership -- that is up for grabs.

For weeks now I have been reviewing reports and records of what appears to be one of the most colossal mishandlings of district funds in labor's history.

What comes out of all this vast accounting work reaches further than $800 and $700 and $500 checks being made out in Florida for expenses allegedly disbursed by the District President Milton Weihrauch at Florida hotels during an AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting -- at which there does not appear to be any reason for his attendance.

More is involved here than "round figure" checks, generally unvouchered, for sums such as $5,000 and $4,800 and $1,600, etc. More is involved here than the fact that many checks were endorsed by mysterious persons or friends of the District President Weihrauch and Treasurer, Joe Iozzi.

More even than the District bookkeeper endorsing five checks totaling more than $10,000 for purposes she never knew.

More is involved than Mr. Weihrauch's telling his board that his life had been threatened -- and therefore that his life insurance policy, paid for by the union, should be raised. This increased its loan value, though generally such insurances should be term policies.

More here is involved than huge restaurant tabs ($11,000) being signed at a fine Newark, N.J., restaurant, and in Atlantic City, or the generous use of an American Express credit card.

What is, indeed, of deep concern is the auditor's report, made up of whatever could be gleaned from banks and merchants, etc., gas stations, travel expense payments, etc., that only $141,000 is traceable. Also, "some $60,000 in checks were made out to 'cash' sometimes unsupported by vouchers, or where vouchers were present, they contained general categories like 'strike assistance,' 'local assistance,' or 'meetings' without mentioning even the name of the local union, never mind the alleged purposes of these checks."

Included among the checks made out to cash were the five totaling more than $10,000 endorsed by the bookkeeper, checks for more than $8,000 made payable to Milton Weihrauch and for more than $54,000 to Iozzi unsupported by vouchers, or meagerly explained.

There also were checks made out to cash, "strike assistance" and "meetings."

Yet many of the locals which had been on strike report they got mightly little out of all these funds. One local reports it got 150 to 200 turkeys. Another states it received 500 turkeys and 1,500 dozen eggs. It was supposed to have received $16,000. Still another reports donations of 1,000 chickens, and 1,000 eggs each week for seven weeks and 400 turkeys on Thanksgiving and Christmas during a stoppage. It allegedly received -- according to the District records -- $27,500. There was a district check for $1,000.

There also was a check, unvouchered, to a poultry firm from District Three, for $7,000.

Some of the locals who were supposed to have received the District strike relief funds said they got nothing.

Thus the issue is: What happened to the most sacred of such fraternal support, strike relief, while union brothers and sisters were on the picket lines, payless.

Brother Weihruach is being defended in the intra - union developments by the eminent counselor Ed Bennett Williams. This is unusual. Handsome Ed Williams rarely takes an unimportant case.

Important, it is. The basic issue is far more than high living. Or making a juggle of financial records. If Mr. Weihrauch has a case he should say so. The public and the rank and file have the right to know what happens to such funds on the strike front. How does a militant district union's image become today's picture of Dorian Gray?

Unless this strange handling of funds is cleared up by the labor movement as well as a grand jury, what value ever again will high - sounding statements of ethics have in the marketplace where we all meet -- the labor leader, the rank and file, the employer and the people.

Kegler's Korner

By MARY MEYER

A little catching up to do this week. Yours truly was gone on a little jaunt until Tuesday night.

The Friday Bowlettes had a change - up in their secretaries but turned in both weeks' reports.

For the week of Sept. 15, high individual game was 187 rolled by Dorothy Pratt. Wilma Acord rolled high individual series of 502. High team single game of 727 was rolled by Rogers Oil and high team three games series of 2061 was rolled by Nowell Construction.

Games won and lost, turned in, were up-to-date totals and are not being reported at this time. Team standings will be reported approximately mid-season.

For the week of Sept. 22, Mildred Cockrell rolled high individual game of 187 and Vera Gaston rolled high individual series of 487. Ziegenhorn rolled both high team game and series of 787-2087.

Hilda McClung shot a triplicate of 121. Reported splits picked up were Linda Hill, 5-7; Bev Black and Hilda McClung, 5-10; Charlene Hubbard, 4-5-7 and Virginia Dollar, 4-7-9.

Sept. 19 in the Delta Imperialettes, Pat Howard rolled a big 224, big for anyone but particularly for a young bowler with a 113 average. Congratulations, Pat. Norma Baker had high individual series of 527.

Campbell's Farms rolled both high team single game and high team series of 900-2522.

Reported splits: Jean Wilson, 5-10; Elsie Butler, 5-7; Anita Ziegler, 4-7-10 and 3-5-10.

In games won and lost. Campbell's Farms rolled over Ziegenhorn, 4-0; likewise A and B Pastries over L and A Laundry, 4-0. Crown 3-Potlatch 1; Zieglers 3-Progressive 1; City Police 3-Reiss Dairy 1 while Barketts won 2½ to Ferrell's 1½.

Sept. 20 in the Royal Kegler's League, Thelma Hampton blasted a 214-577 to collect high individual games and series. In fact, the team Thelma bowls on, outdid themselves, as far as Holyfield was concerned, with high team game and series of 1071 and 3067.

H. Herb Stephens steamed over Holyfield Flying 4-0. No Names snowed Bank of Sikeston 4-0. Liberty Super Market won 3½ to General Oil Company's ½. In other contests, Lewis Furniture won 2½ to Malone and Hyde's 1½. There are lots of ½ games to plague the secretaries. Wade's Body Shop split 2-2 with First National Bank and C. D. Alcorn split 2-2 with Busch Bavarian.

Splits recorded: Virginia Holsinger, Mary Scott, Mary Meyer, 5-10; Jean Anderson 5-7.

Visitors going through a large lumber mill in the Pacific Northwest may see how bark is blasted off logs with high-pressure jets of water. Wafer-thin veneer is swiftly peeled off logs with a sharp saw.

Hilda McClung shot a triplicate of 121. Reported splits picked up were Linda Hill, 5-7; Bev Black and Hilda McClung, 5-10; Charlene Hubbard, 4-5-7 and Virginia Dollar, 4-7-9.

Sept. 19 in the Delta Imperialettes, Pat Howard rolled a big 224, big for anyone but particularly for a young bowler with a 113 average. Congratulations, Pat. Norma Baker had high individual series of 527.

Campbell's Farms rolled both high team single game and high team series of 900-2522.

Reported splits: Jean Wilson, 5-10; Elsie Butler, 5-7; Anita Ziegler, 4-7-10 and 3-5-10.

In games won and lost. Campbell's Farms rolled over Ziegenhorn, 4-0; likewise A and B Pastries over L and A Laundry, 4-0. Crown 3-Potlatch 1; Zieglers 3-Progressive 1; City Police 3-Reiss Dairy 1 while Barketts won 2½ to Ferrell's 1½.

Sept. 20 in the Royal Kegler's League, Thelma Hamoton blasted a 214-577 to collect high individual games and series. In fact, the team Thelma bowls on, outdid themselves, as far as Holyfield was concerned, with high team game and series of 1071 and 3067.

H. Herb Stephens steamed over Holyfield Flying 4-0. No Names snowed Bank of Sikeston 4-0. Liberty Super Market won 3½ to General Oil Company's ½. In other contests, Lewis Furniture won 2½ to Malone and Hyde's 1½. There are lots of ½ games to plague the secretaries. Wade's Body Shop split 2-2 with First National Bank and C. D. Alcorn split 2-2 with Busch Bavarian.

Splits recorded: Virginia Holsinger, Mary Scott, Mary Meyer, 5-10; Jean Anderson 5-7.

Visitors going through a large lumber mill in the Pacific Northwest may see how bark is blasted off logs with high-pressure jets of water. Wafer-thin veneer is swiftly peeled off logs with a sharp saw.

THE PROUD BANNER of supremacy in the National League is unfurled by three St. Louis Cardinals who played key roles in the team's drive to the pennant. Left to right, catcher Tim McCarver, first baseman Orlando Cepeda and manager Red Schoendienst hold the bunting.

Lions Success

DETROIT (AP) — Mike Lucci has a simple explanation for the new-found success of the Detroit Lions.

"We're just playing a lot better," said the middle linebacker.

The defense was the National Football League Lions' strong suit for years, but this year the offense, sparked by the running of rookie Mel Farr, has grabbed the attention.

The Lions tied the world champion Green Bay Packers 17-17 in their season opener, then crushed Cleveland 31-14 Sunday.

Lucci thinks the defense is better, too, and gives a lot of credit to new coach Joe Schmidt and defensive coach Jim David.

"We've got a couple of new defenses which gives us something to go to in case we're getting hurt," he said, "and that's something we didn't have before."

Schmidt was the middle linebacker for the Lions for 13 years, but when he retired last year and became an assistant coach Lucci took over the job.

He filled in capably, intercepting five passes last year. The 27-year-old athlete stands 6-foot-2 and weighs 235 pounds.

There have been a lot of changes in the Lion defense this year, but Lucci thinks they've helped. Lem Barney, a rookie, moved in at cornerback. Jerry Rush took over at tackle when veteran Roger Brown was traded.

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — Former auto racing champion Stirling Moss of London Wednesday set off a dynamite charge in a ground breaking ceremony for a new race track which will be known as the Michigan International Speedway.

KC Fans Enjoyed Athletics' Sweep

KANSAS CITY (AP)— A handful of diehard baseball fans, sipping hot chocolate and coffee to keep warm in 50 - degree weather, whooped it up Wednesday night for the Athletics in what may be their final appearance in Kansas City.

The A's, deep in the American League cellar and with nothing to lose, closed out their home season by winning both ends of a doubleheader from the pennant contending Chicago White Sox, 5-2, and 4-0.

"We might as well see the A's now, we might not see them again," was the consensus of the 15,325 onlookers.

The Athletics are rumored to be moving to the West Coast next season.

But Wednesday night, they still belonged to Kansas City and the crowd, blanketed and clad against the autumn chill, responded warmly to the victorious finish.

Jack Layton, the A's public address announcer, recalled between games that he saw them open here April 12, 1955, by defeating Detroit, 6-2.

"I saw their very first game," he said, "and I guess I'm going to see their last."

DID YOU KNOW -- that the average age of a track star when he reaches his peak is 24 years?

A's Assist Twins, Sweep Twin Bill from White Sox

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eddie Stanky's Walking Dead finally appear to have died, stricken with the last lethal blows from a most unexpected source.

Poised to seize the lead in the daffy American League pennant race Wednesday night, the Chicago White Sox instead tumbled to fourth place, just an eyelash away from elimination.

The villains were the usually harmless Kansas City Athletics, whose lease to the cellar has been locked up for weeks. The A's swept a twi-night doubleheader from the White Sox 5-2 and 4-0, leaving Chicago with nothing more to hope for than a slim chance of forcing a playoff.

Front-running Minnesota bowed to California 5-1 and Boston dropped its second straight to Cleveland 6-0 Wednesday afternoon. Detroit was idle. That meant that when the White Sox took the field against the A's, they were a mere one-half game behind the Twins and led the three other contenders in the vital loss column.

Less than six hours later, they were on the brink of being completely out of the picture. The double loss left them with an 89-70 record and a maximum possibility of 92 victories if they sweep their three remaining games against Washington.

Minnesota has already won 91 and Boston 90. Those two teams play their last two games against each other. If they split, Chicago must sweep to tie Minnesota. If Boston wins both games, a White Sox sweep would tie the Red Sox. If Minnesota wins both games, the White Sox are through, regardless of what they do.

In the National League, San Francisco beat New York 7-2 and Houston edged Philadelphia 1-0 and Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles 1-0.

It was a characteristic lack of hitting that did the Sox in. They managed just seven hits in the doubleheader and that, Virginia, is not the kind of attack that wins pennants.

Jim Gosger's three hits drove in three runs for the A's and Chuck Dobson handcuffed the Sox on two hits until the ninth inning of the opener. Then Chicago pushed across both its runs but Paul Lindblad pitched out of the jam and saved Dobson's 10th victory.

Jim (Catfish) Hunter won his 13th in the nightcap, allowing just three hits and started Kansas City's winning four-run rally in the sixth inning with a single.

"Do I think we have a chance?" asked Stanky, the White Sox manager. "How do I answer that?"

"I've been in baseball 30 years. I've seen seven runs in the last of the ninth this year. I've seen a winning streak of 10. I've seen us in first place. I've seen us in sixth place.

"We win three and I'm happy. I'm paid to manage the White Sox 162 games, or more, if necessary."

The Angels, who finish the season with four games against Detroit, hopped on ex-teammate Dean Chance and stunned the Twins. It gave California two victories in the three game series with the league leaders.

Don Mincher, a former Twin, started a four-run fourth inning against Chance with his 22nd home run of the year. Chance, working with just two day's rest, blamed himself.

"I blew it," he said, "nobody but me. I just made some bad pitches— high pitches. There's no excuse for it. If it costs us the pennant, I'll have something to think about all winter."

Cal Ermer, Minnesota's manager, was glad to be finished with California. "I think the Angels will be tough on Detroit," he said. "They sure were tough on us."

Three Cleveland pitchers stymied Boston on five hits and catcher Joe Azcue exulted, "we put the nails in the coffin," after the Indians blanked the Red Sox.

Rookie Richie Scheinblum smashed three hits, scored three runs and drove in another. Azcue had two hits and two RBI.

THE POWERFUL LEG of Jim Bakken, St. Louis Cardinals placekicker, accounted for a new National Football League record of seven field goals in one game. He did it against Pittsburgh.

Versatile Is Arkansas' Hoehn

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. -- Tall, muscular and a fine speciman of man, Steve Hoehn would not be difficult to pick out of a crowd as a college football player. He's the kind Norman Rockwell would sketch for a magazine cover. Make the setting a classroom or an art exhibit and the job becomes something else again.

At 6-4 and 204 pounds, he wears the unpretentious identity of "monster-man" in the widely-copied Razorback defense. And -- Stephen Michael Hoehn (pronounced Hane) is well-equipped to fill his role of part-linebacker and part-defensive back. The position calls for the skills of a very versatile athlete. With Steve Hoehn, however, versatility does not stop with Razorback football.

Besides collecting high school academic honors and the coveted Eagle rank in scouting, Steve is an artist of local repute. To hear him tell it, though, he's only a casual amateur.

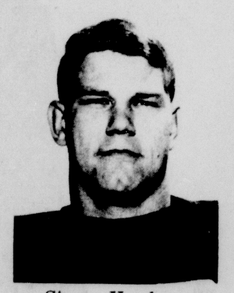
"I had a good teacher in high school who really knew her art," he said, "and she got me started off right. Water colors first -- and then on to the oils."

Ever win in competition?

"Well," came the reply, "I like to work mostly with landscapes and I was lucky enough to take a couple of prizes at local shows. One of them was a grand-prize winner."

Other than excellent on an esthetic nature, the Malden, Mo., product takes pride in his classroom work at the U of A. He ranks near the top of his class in Industrial Engineering courses, the career he plans to pursue upon graduation.

"My courses involve a lot more theory than some of the other engineering studies," he said. "Less hard facts and more room for individual work."



Steve Hoehn

As far as Arkansas opponents are concerned, there is nothing to theorize when it comes to Hoehn's style of play on the gridiron. He is rugged, quick and possesses an ideal aptitude for this quasi-linebacker position. Razorback fans will atest those ARE hard, cold facts.

"Nothing speaks louder than actions on the field," says Steve. "I'm a senior and I think senior ball-players should set an example with their play. We've got some sophomores on defense and they're going to make mistakes while they learn. When I got into the game as a sophomore, I nearly went crazy out there."

As a bright-eyed freshman right from Malden (population - 5,200), Hoehn quickly adapted to the winning tradition at Arkansas. The Shoats swept through a five-game season undefeated that year -- something that Steve remembers with pride.

"In high school, Malden didn't exactly burn up the conference when I played," he recalls. "We had a perfect record during my sophomore season - - no wins and 10 losses."

Now married to the former Judy Shepard (also from Malden), Steve and his wife are close friends of Nancy and Tommy Trantham, Arkansas' senior defensive halfback and his former Wilson Sharp roommate. When Steve and Tommy were single and roomed together in the dorm, they staged a continuous battle for game interceptions. Tommy now leads, 6-3, over a two-year period.

THE PROUD BANNER of supremacy in the National League is unfurled by three St. Louis Cardinals who played key roles in the team's drive to the pennant. Left to right, catcher Tim McCarver, first baseman Orlando Cepeda and manager Red Schoendienst hold the bunting.

Lions Success

DETROIT (AP) — Mike Lucci has a simple explanation for the new-found success of the Detroit Lions.

"We're just playing a lot better," said the middle linebacker.

The defense was the National Football League Lions' strong suit for years, but this year the offense, sparked by the running of rookie Mel Farr, has grabbed the attention.

The Lions tied the world champion Green Bay Packers 17-17 in their season opener, then crushed Cleveland 31-14 Sunday.

Lucci thinks the defense is better, too, and gives a lot of credit to new coach Joe Schmidt and defensive coach Jim David.

"We've got a couple of new defenses which gives us something to go to in case we're getting hurt," he said, "and that's something we didn't have before."

Schmidt was the middle linebacker for the Lions for 13 years, but when he retired last year and became an assistant coach Lucci took over the job.

He filled in capably, intercepting five passes last year. The 27-year-old athlete stands 6-foot-2 and weighs 235 pounds.

There have been a lot of changes in the Lion defense this year, but Lucci thinks they've helped. Lem Barney, a rookie, moved in at cornerback. Jerry Rush took over at tackle when veteran Roger Brown was traded.

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — Former auto racing champion Stirling Moss of London Wednesday set off a dynamite charge in a ground breaking ceremony for a new race track which will be known as the Michigan International Speedway.

KC Fans Enjoyed Athletics' Sweep

KANSAS CITY (AP)— A handful of diehard baseball fans, sipping hot chocolate and coffee to keep warm in 50 - degree weather, whooped it up Wednesday night for the Athletics in what may be their final appearance in Kansas City.

The A's, deep in the American League cellar and with nothing to lose, closed out their home season by winning both ends of a doubleheader from the pennant contending Chicago White Sox, 5-2, and 4-0.

"We might as well see the A's now, we might not see them again," was the consensus of the 15,325 onlookers.

The Athletics are rumored to be moving to the West Coast next season.

But Wednesday night, they still belonged to Kansas City and the crowd, blanketed and clad against the autumn chill, responded warmly to the victorious finish.

Jack Layton, the A's public address announcer, recalled between games that he saw them open here April 12, 1955, by defeating Detroit, 6-2.

"I saw their very first game," he said, "and I guess I'm going to see their last."

DID YOU KNOW -- that the average age of a track star when he reaches his peak is 24 years?

A's Assist Twins, Sweep Twin Bill from White Sox

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eddie Stanky's Walking Dead finally appear to have died, stricken with the last lethal blows from a most unexpected source.

Poised to seize the lead in the daffy American League pennant race Wednesday night, the Chicago White Sox instead tumbled to fourth place, just an eyelash away from elimination.

The villains were the usually harmless Kansas City Athletics, whose lease to the cellar has been locked up for weeks. The A's swept a twi-night doubleheader from the White Sox 5-2 and 4-0, leaving Chicago with nothing more to hope for than a slim chance of forcing a playoff.

Front-running Minnesota bowed to California 5-1 and Boston dropped its second straight to Cleveland 6-0 Wednesday afternoon. Detroit was idle. That meant that when the White Sox took the field against the A's, they were a mere one-half game behind the Twins and led the three other contenders in the vital loss column.

Less than six hours later, they were on the brink of being completely out of the picture. The double loss left them with an 89-70 record and a maximum possibility of 92 victories if they sweep their three remaining games against Washington.

Minnesota has already won 91 and Boston 90. Those two teams play their last two games against each other. If they split, Chicago must sweep to tie Minnesota. If Boston wins both games, a White Sox sweep would tie the Red Sox. If Minnesota wins both games, the White Sox are through, regardless of what they do.

In the National League, San Francisco beat New York 7-2 and Houston edged Philadelphia 1-0 and Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles 1-0.

It was a characteristic lack of hitting that did the Sox in. They managed just seven hits in the doubleheader and that, Virginia, is not the kind of attack that wins pennants.

Jim Gosger's three hits drove in three runs for the A's and Chuck Dobson handcuffed the Sox on two hits until the ninth inning of the opener. Then Chicago pushed across both its runs but Paul Lindblad pitched out of the jam and saved Dobson's 10th victory.

Jim (Catfish) Hunter won his 13th in the nightcap, allowing just three hits and started Kansas City's winning four-run rally in the sixth inning with a single.

"Do I think we have a chance?" asked Stanky, the White Sox manager. "How do I answer that?"

"I've been in baseball 30 years. I've seen seven runs in the last of the ninth this year. I've seen a winning streak of 10. I've seen us in first place. I've seen us in sixth place.

"We win three and I'm happy. I'm paid to manage the White Sox 162 games, or more, if necessary."

The Angels, who finish the season with four games against Detroit, hopped on ex-teammate Dean Chance and stunned the Twins. It gave California two victories in the three game series with the league leaders.

Don Mincher, a former Twin, started a four-run fourth inning against Chance with his 22nd home run of the year. Chance, working with just two day's rest, blamed himself.

"I blew it," he said, "nobody but me. I just made some bad pitches— high pitches. There's no excuse for it. If it costs us the pennant, I'll have something to think about all winter."

Cal Ermer, Minnesota's manager, was glad to be finished with California. "I think the Angels will be tough on Detroit," he said. "They sure were tough on us."

Three Cleveland pitchers stymied Boston on five hits and catcher Joe Azcue exulted, "we put the nails in the coffin," after the Indians blanked the Red Sox.

Rookie Richie Scheinblum smashed three hits, scored three runs and drove in another. Azcue had two hits and two RBI.

THE POWERFUL LEG of Jim Bakken, St. Louis Cardinals placekicker, accounted for a new National Football League record of seven field goals in one game. He did it against Pittsburgh.

Versatile Is Arkansas' Hoehn

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. -- Tall, muscular and a fine speciman of man, Steve Hoehn would not be difficult to pick out of a crowd as a college football player. He's the kind Norman Rockwell would sketch for a magazine cover. Make the setting a classroom or an art exhibit and the job becomes something else again.

At 6-4 and 204 pounds, he wears the unpretentious identity of "monster-man" in the widely-copied Razorback defense. And-- Stephen Michael Hoehn (pronounced Hane) is well-equipped to fill his role of part-linebacker and part-defensive back. The position calls for the skills of a very versatile athlete. With Steve Hoehn, however, versatility does not stop with Razorback football.

Besides collecting high school academic honors and the coveted Eagle rank in scouting, Steve is an artist of local repute. To hear him tell it, though, he's only a casual amateur.

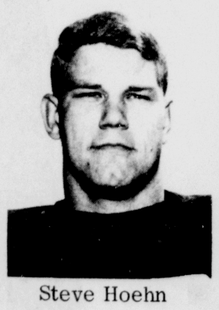
"I had a good teacher in high school who really knew her art," he said, "and she got me started off right. Water colors first -- and then on to the oils."

Ever win in competition?

"Well," came the reply, "I like to work mostly with landscapes and I was lucky enough to take a couple of prizes at local shows. One of them was a grand-prize winner."

Other than excellent on an esthetic nature, the Malden, Mo., product takes pride in his classroom work at the U of A. He ranks near the top of his class in Industrial Engineering courses, the career he plans to pursue upon graduation.

"My courses involve a lot more theory than some of the other engineering studies," he said. "Less hard facts and more room for individual work."



Steve Hoehn

As far as Arkansas opponents are concerned, there is nothing to theorize when it comes to Hoehn's style of play on the gridiron. He is rugged, quick and possesses an ideal aptitude for this quasi-linebacker position. Razorback fans will atest those ARE hard, cold facts.

"Nothing speaks louder than actions on the field," says Steve. "I'm a senior and I think senior ball-players should set an example with their play. We've got some sophomores on defense and they're going to make mistakes while they learn. When I got into the game as a sophomore, I nearly went crazy out there."

As a bright-eyed freshman right from Malden (population - 5,200), Hoehn quickly adapted to the winning tradition at Arkansas. The Shoats swept through a five-game season undefeated that year -- something that Steve remembers with pride.

"In high school, Malden didn't exactly burn up the conference when I played," he recalls. "We had a perfect record during my sophomore season - - no wins and 10 losses."

Now married to the former Judy Shepard (also from Malden), Steve and his wife are close friends of Nancy and Tommy Trantham, Arkansas' senior defensive halfback and his former Wilson Sharp roommate. When Steve and Tommy were single and roomed together in the dorm, they staged a continuous battle for game interceptions. Tommy now leads, 6-3, over a two-year period.

MU Meets Intersectional Rival Northwestern at Evanston Saturday

COLUMBIA -- Missouri and Northwestern, two intersectional rivals both "up" mentally for unexpected victories last week, square off at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Evanston in what shapes up as a top-notch defensive struggle.

Each relied heavily on ball-hawking techniques in its season-opener. A three-point pregame favorite, the Tigers scored touchdowns on a punt return and interception to trip Southern Methodist 21-0, and in the process vaulted to tenth place in the United Press International coaches poll.

A Big Ten Conference also ran last season, Northwestern forced highly-ranked Miami of Florida into a costly interception and fumbled punt attempt for its scores in its 12-7 surprise. Coach Alex Agase's Wildcats are now 14th best in the UPI ratings.

If the two rugged defenses can counter-balance one another in N.U.'s Dycke Stadium, the outcome may revolve around how well Mizzou's offense can compete with the Wildcats, a bigger but perhaps slower unit than SMU.

Both teams feature senior quarterbacks -- the Tigers' Gary Kombrink and the Wildcats' Bill Melzer -- and their attacking pattern off an unbalanced line is similar. Northwestern tends to be more air-orientated, but even so the Bengals don't have the running threat of all-purpose halfback Chico Kurzawski.

It was Kurzawski, the Chicago Prep Football Player of the Year in 1964, who put the winning points on the scoreboard against Miami. In true turnabout, he hit Melzer with a nine-yard touchdown pass to register the victory.

The Black and Gold stayed mainly on the ground in toppling SMU. Kombrink gained a career-high 128 yards in 20 carries and hard driving fullback Barry Lischner covered 72 more, including a six-yard touchdown thrust. However, M. U. shined even brighter defensiliely.

Sophomore Butch Davis quickly made his presence felt in his initial varsity test when he intercepted a pass and raced 53 yards for Missouri's first 1967 points. His running mate at defensive halfback, veteran Roger Wehrli, returned a punt 64 yards for the final score.

"Missouri uses the Woody Hayes' Ohio State style of offense, running 90 percent of the time and passing when they have to," Agase said. "Kombrink likes to keep the ball," he added.

Defensively, they remind you of some Murray Warmath's better defensive teams at Minnesota -- sound and solid. They don't make many mistakes."

Agase felt Northwestern won its opener because "the players have great belief in themselves." He singled out guard Bruce Gunstra as a cinch all-American and also pointed to linebacker John Cornell who recorded 14 tackles against Miami.

Coach Dan Devine and assistants noted top effort in the performance of both Mizzou lines. They praised the blocking of end Marty Berg and center Con Rees and the strong, balanced tackling, led by guard Lee Mungai.

Injury - wise, the Tigers emerged fairly unscathed from the opener. Kombrink sprained an ankle, Mungai sustained a minor head injury and Leschner required fluid drained from his oft hurt knee. Defensive end Elmer Benhardt suffered a hyper-extended elbow and halfback Larry Moore a back ailment.

All figure too start Saturday. If Benhardt can't, Russ Washington is scheduled to move into the spot he held last season until being injured, and Jim Anderson will spell him at tackle. In addition, halfback Greg Cook, out since Aug. 31 with an appendectomy, may make the trip to Evanston.

Night Desk GR1-1137

Our Sports Night desk will be open from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. each Friday night and Saturday morning during the prep gridiron football season.

Matthews' Jim Hart to Speak at Clinic

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Arkansas State University's second annual Basketball Clinic will be held on the Jonesboro campus on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 13 and 14.

Coach Marvin Speight announced that the featured speaker for the clinic will be Memphis State Tiger head coach Moe Iba. Iba will speak twice during the two-day clinic.

The clinic will be conducted in a lecture and discussion form with each lecturer-coach talking about a different phase of basketball. At the end of each day the lecturers will be panel members for a panel discussion with questions being offered by the coaches attending the clinic.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. on Oct. 13 and the first session begins at 3 p.m. Coach Iba will speak first at the 8 p.m. session. Other lecturers were selected from different high schools in the tri-state area. They include: Charlie Eagle of Jonesboro, James Hart of Matthews, Mo., Glen Siler of Palestine, Johnny Widner of Leachville and Pat Foster of Fairview High School in Camden. Also on the staff is Gary Holland, coach of Southern Baptist College.

The dates of the clinic were selected to coincide with the beginning of high school play and the start of college practice sessions.

Seventy coaches attended the clinic last year and Coach Speight expects about 80 to 100 registrants for this year's clinic. "We felt like the clinic last year was a success," Speight stated, "and we look forward to another successful clinic."

DETROIT (AP)-- Wayne Hightower, who played his college basketball at Kansas, has been signed to a one-year contract by the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Association.

Hightower reportedly was igned for $14,000. He had sought a three-year contract.

A Detroit spokesman said Hightower was Piston property until Sept. 20, although he had signed with Denver of the American Basketball Association. Previous court rulings indicated Hightower was legitimate property of the Pistons, the spokesman said.

BILLINGS, Mont. -- Henry Hank, Detroit, knocked out Les Borden, Montreal 4, light-heavyweights.

ATLANTA (AP)-- David Love of Atlanta and Lee Trevino of El Paso, Tex., shot three-under-par 69s Wednesday and tied for the low professional prise in the pro-amateur prelude to the Atlanta Golf Tournament.

Matthews' Jim Hart to Speak at Clinic

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Arkansas State University's second annual Basketball Clinic will be held on the Jonesboro campus on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 13 and 14.

Coach Marvin Speight announced that the featured speaker for the clinic will be Memphis State Tiger head coach Moe Iba. Iba will speak twice during the two-day clinic.

The clinic will be conducted in a lecture and discussion form with each lecturer-coach talking about a different phase of basketball. At the end of each day the lecturers will be panel members for a panel discussion with questions being offered by the coaches attending the clinic.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. on Oct. 13 and the first session begins at 3 p.m. Coach Iba will speak first at the 8 p.m. session.

Other lecturers were selected from different high schools in the tri-state area. They include: Charlie Eagle of Jonesboro, James Hart of Matthews, Mo., Glen Siler of Palestine, Johnny Widner of Leachville and Pat Foster of Fairview High School in Camden. Also on the staff is Gary Holland, coach of Southern Baptist College.

The dates of the clinic were selected to coincide with the beginning of high school play and the start of college practice sessions.

Seventy coaches attended the clinic last year and Coach Speight expects about 80 to 100 registrants for this year's clinic. "We felt like the clinic last year was a success," Speight stated, "and we look forward to another successful clinic."

Bell Withdraws Rate Request

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has withdrawn its request for permission to pass on local gross receipts taxes to its customers and the Public Service Commission dismissed complaints of customers.

The company said it figured the cost of explaining the complicated procedure by which it would have boosted its Missouri revenues by $1.8 million would be too great to make it worthwhile.

Briefly, Bell had planned to reduce over-all rates then make a surcharge out of local gross receipts taxes levied by municipalities. The net result would have been an increase for Bell, an increase for some customers and a decrease for others.

In its withdrawal request Bell said "the company wants to be understood that it later will file revised tariffs to produce earnings representing a fair return on the value of its property devoted to its public services in Missouri."

The utility did not outline the form of its proposed new rate hike request or indicate how soon it would come.

Among the complaints against the earlier rate change were 55 from hotels and motels in metropolitan Kansas City and St. Louis.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

Sometime before the end of this year the population of the United States will move past 200 million. Nearly 87 million of the American people will be 25 years old or younger. Obviously this group will exert a great and a growing influence in the choice of those who are to become our future leaders and largely they will make the decisions that determine our future. For this reason alone it is imperative that these 85 million young people and the increasing youths who will follow them, need the very best education that our nation can afford. They need not only the tools and the skills of learning, in order that they may continue to learn and to grow in knowledge, but they need experience in making decisions, hopefully, decisions that will be correct for their place and time in society and in the history of our nation and world.

The kind of world that they, our children live in, will in the long run, depend upon how successful we are in providing adequate schooling, sound education in all of its many aspects. Even good schools, which we have the ability to provide, but are not doing so over the nation as a whole, cannot do this job alone. It requires the cooperative efforts of all elements of our society, of all of our social and educational institutions and most certainly the environment of sound and responsible home.

There was a time when our school tax levy in this district was about the highest, if not the highest, in Missouri. We did not boast about this, but we were proud that the people of the district believed in good schools to the extent that they repteatedly approved the tax levy by an overwhelming majority. We had to do so if we were to have anything like decent schools for our children. Because of our very low tax base, our valuation per child, the levy had to be high to bring in enough funds to operate the school program. Even so, the $4.00 levy was not, and is not, as high as it seems in relation to our property evaluations in Scott County. According to the State Tax Commission last year Scott County property was only valued at 26.15 per cent of its actual value, considerably less than the 30 per cent evaluation which the State Tax Commission desires. Some of our counties evaluate their real estate and personal property as high as 34.92 per cent of its actual value. The average for the state last year was 28.97 per cent of true value.

This simply means that the tax payer is paying more taxes per unit of levy in a county where valuations are higher than they are in the lower evaluated districts.

These are a few of the districts in the state with tax levies equal to or exceeding our levy: Eureka, $4.00; Ferguson, $4.27; Festus, $4.90; Fulton, $4.10; Hazelwood, $4.40; Kirkwood, $4.47; Lee Summit, $4.25; Liberty, $4.49; Raytown, $4.45; Riverview Gardens, $4.05; St. Charles, $4.36; University City, $4.29; Webster Groves, $4.07; and Wellston, $4.49.

All are in counties having a higher ratio of tax evaluation to true value than Scott County. All have more tax evaluation per child than does our district.

Sometime ago the Board of Education appointed an insurance advisory committee to recommend the best possible insurance coverage for the district's properties and responsibilities and to, from time to time, evaluate the insurance program in order to keep it up to date. In essence, to get the most in insurance coverage for the tax payers dollar. Our district is indebted to this committee for its very considerable amount of work and effort in preparing the very comprehensive and detailed studies and proposals which are required, as we are to all of our local insurors who assist the committee and cooperate so well with the Board. Currently the committee is composed of Joe Leslie, chairman, and members Keith Ziegenhorn and William Huff. Leslie formerly served as the Board's liason or insurance representative with the other insurance agents in the schools insurance program but, the work involved in doing so became so great that the Board felt that this was too much to ask of one individual and so appointed the three member committee. They work directly with Harold Vogel, assisted by Charles Simpson, both members of the schools administrative staff, subject to final approval of the Board of Education.

We are of the opinion that this cooperative arrangement has worked very satisfactorly and we appreciate the excellent relationship with all of our local insurance agents.

A recent survey commissioned by the U.S. Office of Education to comply with the 1964 Civil Rights Act was conducted by Professor James Coleman of John's Hopkins University. The report has created considerable comment and no little controversy. According to Coleman one of the things brought out in the study indicates that Negroes performed better when they were in integrated schools -- but lower economic group Negroes still did not perform as well as middle - class whites. "There seems to be a real advantage to Negroes, and no disadvantage to whites, in schools where there is not a majority of Negroes," he says, "but the advantage is not enough to eliminate the disadvantages with which the Negroes came." Though this may sound pessimistic, Coleman agrees that "it is really no different from the experience of the lower-class white child in heterogeneous schools in the past. They never did as well as the middle-class children. So on the basis of historical evidence, integration is not going to be the final achievement."

"The family," Professor Coleman says, "can be a tremendous influencing factor in school achievement. What our study really showed, was the relative weakness of the influence of the schools against family and peer influence."

A community college can be a truer "people's school" or "people's college" than perhaps any other type of higher educational institution because it's nearer to those whom it serves and its policies are planned to a greater extent by its board made up of representative citizens of its district.

It's a "people's college" in the pattern of its service. It serves: 1. those who wish to complete a 1 or 2 year technical education course for entrance of business and industry, 2. those who wish to make up education deficiencies in order to enroll in an academic or technical program, 3. those who wish to complete 1 or 2 years of academic credit and then transfer to a 4-year college or university, 4. those who wish to enroll as adults, day or night, in order to up-grade themselves in their jobs, and 5. those who wish to enroll in individual classes or full program for cultural development and enjoyment.

Such a "people's college" could well serve the Mississippi, New Madrid, Stoddard, and Scott County areas.

HINTS FOR TEENAGERS

...From your Sewing Editor

A RIDDLE IN STYLE

Can you solve this season's fashion riddle? What begins as a dress and ends in pants? If you can answer jiffy-quick, you're ready to jump into summer fun. You will find the solution in the picture above. The problem defies all rules of logic. One plus one totals a jumpsuit.

This one (Simplicity 7133, Misses' 10-16, 65c) aims for action. The dress part is sleeveless with lapped shoulder extensions, each fastened by a button stitched on through front and back tabs and held underneath with a snap. The neckline is round and cool. The pants length is mini; the pattern also includes an ankle-length jumpsuit. Positioned on the hips are patch pockets for vital odds and ends. A very important zipper closes up the front. Wear it pure and simple or try the newest belted look. When choosing fabric for the mini model, body and washability are qualities to consider. This model is made of white cotton canvas, outstanding with a tan against a background of sea and sky.

START A HAPPENING

What happens to a girl in a jumpsuit? It's a fresh new fashion which takes to old-fashioned ways like a walk in the park or a bicycle built for two. Whether you have a weekend date for a picnic and boating or a weekday job working with children, a jumpsuit is unhampered and all-girl too. For an encore, whip up a dry-off suit of terrycloth to wear on the beach. The finale ought to be ankle-length, exposing merely a gold sandaled foot. Select a soft, silky fabric swirling with butterfly colors, to flutter through the twilight zone. Keep a corduroy or double-knit copy in mind to wear with a blouse or pullover when autumn nips the air.

The making is as easy as answering the riddle. The principal parts are quickly cut out using two main pattern pieces and just as quickly sewn together. With a zippered front, the application ought to be pluperfect. This jumpsuit requires an 18" neck closure. A zipper almost goes in by itself when you follow every step of the way explained on your zipper package. If you're on to the hardware kick, put the glint of a metal zipper, in a contrasting color, into your sportive jumpsuit. You might jazz up the pull with a school emblem or personal trinket. The silky evening version prefers a coil zipper. The DO's of zippering are fully explained in Coats & Clark's leaflet CE 1146R, available free by sending your request to me along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A RIDDLE IN STYLE

Can you solve this season's fashion riddle? What begins as a dress and ends in pants? If you can answer jiffy-quick, you're ready to jump into summer fun. You will find the solution in the picture above. The problem defies all rules of logic. One plus one totals a jumpsuit.

This one (Simplicity 7133, Misses' 10-16, 65c) aims for action. The dress part is sleeveless with lapped shoulder extensions, each fastened by a button stitched on through front and back tabs and held underneath with a snap. The neckline is round and cool. The pants length is mini; the pattern also includes an ankle-length jumpsuit. Positioned on the hips are patch pockets for vital odds and ends. A very important zipper closes up the front. Wear it pure and simple or try the newest belted look. When choosing fabric for the mini model, body and washability are qualities to consider. This model is made of white cotton canvas, outstanding with a tan against a background of sea and sky.

START A HAPPENING

What happens to a girl in a jumpsuit? It's a fresh new fashion which takes to old-fashioned ways like a walk in the park or a bicycle built for two. Whether you have a weekend date for a picnic and boating or a weekday job working with children, a jumpsuit is unhampered and all-girl too. For an encore, whip up a dry-off suit of terrycloth to wear on the beach. The finale ought to be ankle-length, exposing merely a gold sandaled foot. Select a soft, silky fabric swirling with butterfly colors, to flutter through the twilight zone. Keep a corduroy or double-knit copy in mind to wear with a blouse or pullover when autumn nips the air.

The making is as easy as answering the riddle. The principal parts are quickly cut out using two main pattern pieces and just as quickly sewn together. With a zippered front, the application ought to be pluperfect. This jumpsuit requires an 18" neck closure. A zipper almost goes in by itself when you follow every step of the way explained on your zipper package. If you're on to the hardware kick, put the glint of a metal zipper, in a contrasting color, into your sportive jumpsuit. You might jazz up the pull with a school emblem or personal trinket. The silky evening version prefers a coil zipper. The DO's of zippering are fully explained in Coats & Clark's leaflet CE 1146R, available free by sending your request to me along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers

Acceptable Words Should Be Told Child for Gutter Terms

Dear Ann Landers: What can a mother do when her preteen children repeat dirty words they hear from the neighbor's kids? Our four-year-old has come home and said some words my husband never learned till he got into the Merchant Marines.

We have washed out the boy's mouth with soap, deprived him of dessert and told him he couldn't watch the Saturday TV cartoons if he continued to talk nasty, but nothing helps. When he drops one dirty word, he picks up another. He doesn't know what the words mean and when he asks why they are bad we don't know what to tell him.

Please don't suggest that we keep him away from the neighbor's children. It is impossible. Thanks for any help you can give us. --- TRYING TO RAISE 'EM RIGHT

Dear Trying: There is no way to prevent children from hearing undesirable language from other children. By the time a youngster gets into the 8th grade he will have heard every dirty word there is. Tell your child certain words are not to be used because they are gutter words. Be emphatic, but don't make such an issue of it that he will use the words as an attention-getting device.

When a child asks what certain words mean he should be told -- and make sure that the acceptable words are substituted for the gutter words. In that way he will learn to express himself properly.

Dear Ann Landers: Now and then you print letters from people who have complaints connected with their jobs. I hope you will help me out by printing my letter. You will also be helping out hundreds of other "bag boys" who carry groceries to people's cars.

Every day I walk an extra 10 miles at least -- up and down the parking lot, my arms loaded with canned goods, because so many goofs can't remember where they parked their cars. Women are the worst. If they would just pay a little attention it would help us a whole lot. Please tell them. -- FLAT FLEET

Dear Feet: It would also help if the parking lots had some markers. A few posts with numbers or letters would do a world of good. How about it, grocers of America?

Dear Ann Landers: Two months ago a couple our age moved in next door. We had a lot in common -- bowling, swimming, playing cards and yard work.

Three weeks ago Mrs. Neighbor telephoned to say her husband left town on business and all her lights were out. She said, "I guess it must be a fuse but I don't know which one it is or what to do about it. Can you send Dick over?"

Dick went over and in five minutes the lights were on, but he stayed for two hours.

Since that evening Dick and Mrs. Neighbor have been looking cow-eyed at each other. He runs to light her cigarette (I have to light my own). When we went out together last night Dick helped her into the car. I almost fell and broke my neck.

Please don't tell me to avoid them because it's impossible. We have the same friends and everywhere we go, they are invited. What's the answer?--- GREEN EYES

Dear Eyes: In the absence of better evidence than you now have, play it cool --- no accusations, no threats, no scenes. The nicer you behave the better your chances to prevent real trouble. If you become openly accustory, you'll shove Dick right into her understanding and comforting arms.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex and How to Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Advice to Shield Crime Can Put Man in Jam

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Fred's future looked as shaky as a pair of dice. Ordered to appear before a federal grand jury to testify against his pal Marty, he didn't know what to do. If he talked, Marty would surely be sent up the river and he, no doubt, would end up under it. Marty would have him rubbed out.

Consequently, when Marty strongly suggested that he plead the Fifth Amendment, Fred took the suggestion without question and kept his mouth shut. The "suggestion," however, boomeranged. Government agents heard about it and Marty was charged with obstructing justice.

"By influencing Fred to plead the Fifth Amendment," the judge was told, "Marty put a spike in the wheels of justice and brought it to a screeching halt."

"All I did was to advise Fred to plead the Fifth," was Marty's defense. "Surely it's no crime to inform someone of his constitutional rights."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jail Marty for his constitutional suggestion?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that while it may be perfectly legal to plead the Fifth Amendment, it can be a crime to urge another to plead it when the urging is for a corrupt purpose or by threat of force.

(Based upon a 1964 U.S. Court of Appeals Decision)

On this date—

In 1781, American forces began the siege of Yorktown in the Revolutionary War.

In 1850, the flogging of sailors in the U.S. Navy was abolished.

In 1899, a great parade in New York was staged in honor of Adm. George Dewey, hero of the Battle of Manila Bay.

In 1937, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River in Oregon.

In 1939, Germany and Russia agreed on a plan to partition Poland.

In 1958, France approved the constitution of Premier Charles de Gaulle and established the Fifth Republic.

Ten years ago, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt interviewed Premier Nikita Khrushchev for 2½ hours at his vacation home in Yalta.

Five years ago, ex-Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker made an appeal to segregationists to go to Mississippi to back up Governor Ross Barnett in his fight to keep Negro James Meredith from entering the University of Mississippi.

One year ago, roving bands of Negroes rioted and looted in San Francisco.

Flag Taken From Grave

MALDEN - A new form of vandalism has been started in the Bootheel area, with cemeteries as the targets.

An American Flag has been taken from the grave of a soldier killed in Vietnam, whose body was brought home for burial in the Stanfield Cemetery near Clarkton.

The theft of the Flag by vandals comes on the heels of the destruction of monuments in the Park Cemetery at Malden.

The Flag was taken from the grave of Matthew Theolo Orton, son of Mrs. Cecil Polsgrove of the Clarkton-Gideon area.

Mrs. Polsgrove stated that she will replace the stolen Flag, and that she feels the person, or persons, who took it did not do so for the Flag itself, but for the simple reason of wanting to do something mean and spiteful. She was justifiably hurt by the incident, and further stated that she feels that it is a waste to disrespect the dead, from any cause, but even more so for the boys who gave their lives to protect the lives of others.

Flag Taken From Grave

MALDEN - A new form of vandalism has been started in the Bootheel area, with cemeteries as the targets.

An American Flag has been taken from the grave of a soldier killed in Vietnam, whose body was brought home for burial in the Stanfield Cemetery near Clarkton.

The theft of the Flag by vandals comes on the heels of the destruction of monuments in the Park Cemetery at Malden.

The Flag was taken from the grave of Matthew Theolo Orton, son of Mrs. Cecil Polsgrove of the Clarkton-Gideon area.

Mrs. Polsgrove stated that she will replace the stolen Flag, and that she feels the person, or persons, who took it did not do so for the Flag itself, but for the simple reason of wanting to do something mean and spiteful. She was justifiably hurt by the incident, and further stated that she feels that it is a waste to disrespect the dead, from any cause, but even more so for the boys who gave their lives to protect the lives of others.

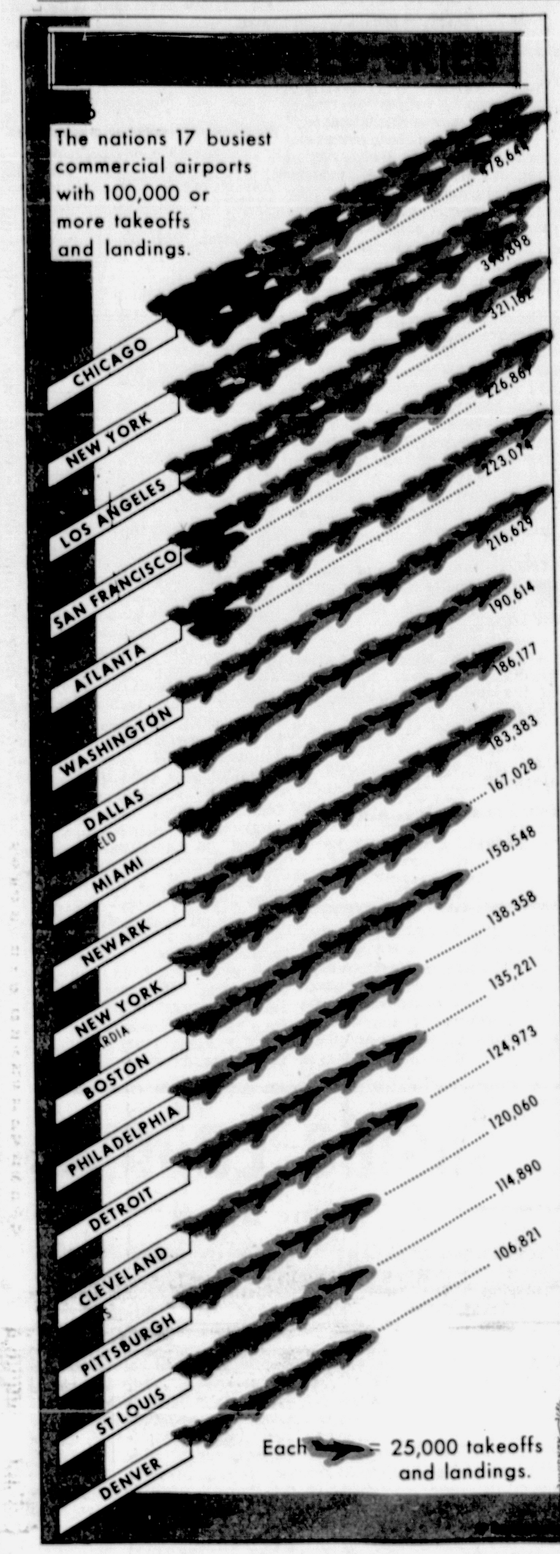
OUR 56TH YEAR — 10¢ PER COPY — SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1967 — NUMBER 313



WASHINGTON (AP) -- Our skies are getting more crowded every day.

Each day more people board from airliners, more are taking flying lessons, more airplanes are winging from factories.

For 1967, passenger traffic on commercial airliners will total 128 million. Ten years from now, the Federal Aviation Agency estimates, there will be 352-million passengers -- nearly three times the present number. A Senate committee heard testimony that the figure may even be 450 million.

The growth in non-airline, non-military flying will be just as spectacular. In 1965, Manufacturers of civil aircraft produced 12,646 planes. The figure in 1966 was 16,404 -- valued at more than $2 billion.

A forecast of 104,000 non-airline, non-military planes in 1967 is sure to be exceeded. By 1977, that total is expected to be 180,000 and will include 8,000 turbine aircraft, compared with 950 this year.

In the next three years the first jumbos -- airliners that carry nearly 500 passengers -- will take to the skies. Despite the increased seating space on the jumbos, the forecast is that airliners will increase from this year's 2,337 to 2,875 in 1972 and 3,500 in 1977.

All this has caused mounting concern for ground facilities to handle them, safety facilities to guide them, airports to land them.

The FAA has ordered a sweeping revision of air safety rules including easier access to exits -- aimed at saving more lives in airline crashes. The new rules are expected to cost the airlines and manufacturers almost $2 billion in the next few years, but passengers are expected to pay most of the cost.

Airport development costs are expected to run $6 billion in the next 10 years. President Johnson has called for a broad new program to cope with the rising air traffic. He has suggested a plan that would spend an estimated $5 billion for new facilities, equipment and additional personnel and said he would ask the airlines, passengers and communities to share the cost of the program.

Even without any increase, flying is at a crisis point. There is mounting clamor to bar private planes from busy commercial airports where they have the same privileges as the big airline jets. But airports are paid for by all citizens and the air is free and some sort of compromise must be reached.

O'Hare Airport in Chicago, the nation's busiest, had 478,644 takeoffs and landings last year by airliners -- an average of 64 each hour. And it had 78,124 general aviation craft landing and taking off -- an average of 9 each hour.

John F. Kennedy International in New York had 390,898 takeoffs and landings last year, an average of 45 an hour.

In all, 17 airports had more than 100,000 airline takeoffs and landings last year. They were in order, O'Hare, Kennedy, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Atlanta, Washington National, Dallas Love Field, Miami, Newark, LaGuardia (N.Y.), Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit Wayne, Cleveland-Hopkins, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Denver.

Others in the top 25 are Kansas City Municipal, Honolulu, Minneapolis-St. Paul, New Orleans, Covington (Cincinnati), Baltimore International and San Juan (Puerto Rico) International.

The busiest airport in the country in total operations, behind Chicago's O'Hare, is Opa Locka, Fla. The airport, near Miami, handled 546,985 general aviation aircraft last year, an average of 62 an hour. It had virtually no airline traffic, however.

Johnson To View Flooding

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — Floodwaters continued to rise in this lower Rio Grande Valley city today as President Johnson prepared to fly to the hurricane-and flood-devastated area for an inspection.

The Arroyo Colorado, massive diversionary channel of the Rio Grande, dropped slowly while the river edged higher.

Beneath the floodwaters lay more than 800 of this usually sparkling town's finest residences, some wholly submerged.

Families from 50 to 60 homes in less affluent neighborhoods were the latest to be driven out Wednesday night as the runaway Arroyo Colorado made end runs around hurriedly constructed dikes.

Bulldozer crews threw up new dikes to stem the flow shortly after midnight.

Flooding worsened as water shot in small geysers from overtaxed storm sewers. Engineers said the waters of the Arroyo, into which rainfall usually drains, were backing into the city because there was nowhere else to go.

More businesses suffered and more streets were awash.

Poison Traced to Warehouse for Bakery Products

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Authorities said today they traced a deadly insecticide blamed for Tijuana's mass poisoning to a warehouse from which bakery products were distributed.

Fifty bakeries were padlocked and posted with guards, and 35 persons linked to the supplier and bakeries were held for questioning. No charges were filed.

By the thousands Tijuana residents trooped across the U.S. border to San Ysidro, Calif., for bread.

Hector Valdivia, deputy district attorney, said the insecticide parathion was found stored in the warehouse near flour, sugar and possibly other ingredients used in foods. He refused to identify the warehouse.

Valdivia said, "Until we get test results from Sacramento, we won't know for sure what food or ingredient was poisoned."

In Sacramento, Calif., chemists of the California Department of Agriculture were examining samples of flour, bread and sugar flown from Tijuana.

Valdivia told a news conference Wednesday that 16 died from poisoning since Sunday. About 25 persons were hospitalized, and an estimated 300 others were released from hospitals and clincis after treatment.

Only two or three new cases of sickness were reported Wednesday, authorities said. The dead were all believed to be children under 10.

Medicare Fee Hike Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Gardner, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, notified the Senate today it appears that the monthly fee for the voluntary medicare program may have to be raised from $3 to $4.

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., made public a letter from the secretary stating that Social Security actuaries have figured that increased costs in the program would require a boost in the fee to $3.80.

In addition, Gardner wrote, changes in the program in a House-passed Social Security bill now before the Senate Finance Committee would add another 20 cents, making a $4 total.

The $3 fee has been in effect since the program, part B of medicare covering chiefly doctors' bills, began July 1, 1966.

Lead Mine Rail Link Dedicated

BUICK, Mo. (AP) — A 32.7 mile long branch of the Frisco Railway was dedicated today. Officials said the new $5 million branch was a testimonial to the confidence the railroad had in the mining industry of Missouri's lead belt.

J.E. Gilliland, Frisco president, said lead mines, mills and a smelter in use or under development in the area are valued at $83 million.

About 175 persons attended the dedication of the new tracks which in most places uses concrete instead of wood rail ties. The group left St. Louis in a special six-car train for the ceremonies 133 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Lodge Denies Calling For Viet Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I never advocated a U.S. invasion of North Vietnam or a bombing of every conceivable target in the North," Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge declared in a statement Wednesday.

The former U.S. envoy to South Vietnam issued the statement after a report of remarks he had asked to be placed off the record was published in an account of his speech to the World Affairs Council of Pittsburgh.

"I never said that restrictions which limit U.S. forces to South Vietnam aid only the enemy," the statement continued. "Nor did I say anything about committing more American soldiers."

Train Kills Lilbourn Man

LILBOURN -- Alex Presnell, about 74, was killed when he was struck by a Frisco freight train about 12:25 p.m. Wednesday.

The train engineer, J. F. Slayden, said he saw what appeared to have been a large piece of paper between the rails, but as the engine approached, he saw that it was a man.

Slayden said he applied the emergency brake but that he could not stop the train in time to avoid hitting Presnell.

Coroner Leo Hedgepeth said Presnell walked along the tracks almost every day and suffered from blackouts. Presnell apparently blacked out Wednesday, Hedgepeth said.

The body was dragged about 75 feet down the tracks.

No inquest will be held.

The body is at Ponder Funeral Home.

Teacher Wearing Miniskirt Booted By Grandmother

DETROIT (AP)— A suburban Taylor Township grandmother who doesn't like miniskirts demonstrated her feelings forcefully Wednesday— by booting a 24-year-old art teacher at Brake Junior High School.

The target of the boot, pretty blonde Hope Palmer, was advised by the school superintendent to file an assault and battery charge.

The grandmother refused to divulge her name, but she reportedly had accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Atis Kalnins, and her granddaughter, Terry, 11, to school when she came upon miniskirted Miss Palmer.

"Hope was with part of her art class putting art objects into a display case. That's when the woman went up to her," said the superintendent, Simon Kachaterian.

He said that of about 800 teachers in the system, he believed Miss Palmer was the only one who wears a miniskirt.

"But she wears leotards under it," Kachaterian added.

Miss Palmer said she intended to continue to wear what she wanted.

U.S. Casualties Nearing 100,000

SAIGON (AP) — The number of Americans killed in the Vietnam war dropped sharply last week but the total of U.S. casualties since the fighting began nearly seven years ago approached 100,000.

An unofficial survey of casualty figures for this year, gave no sign that last week's drop in casualties was part of any long-term decline.

The U.S. Command said 128 Americans were killed during the week, 1,434 were wounded and four were missing. A week earlier, U.S. forces lost 236 killed, 1774 wounded and four missing.

Most of last week's casualties occurred south of the demilitarized zone, where U.S. Marines blocking possible Communist invasion routes to the south have received nearly continuous shellings.

Henry Cabot Lodge, then the U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, had predicted in January that the percentage of U.S. casualties in Vietnam would drop this year.

"I believe the purely military part of the war, which is what the Americans are engaged in, will make tremendous progress in 1967 and that the percentage of American casualties will start declining," he told The Associated Press in an interview.

But official reports show that the rate of U.S. casualties has increased during the year. By March 31, the Pentagon reported U.S. combat deaths running 66 per cent above average weekly losses in 1966.

The number of Americans killed rose from 67 in the first week of January to a peak for 1967 of 337 killed in the week of May 14-20.

By unofficial tally, 13,493 Americans have been killed in Vietnam and 84,877 wounded, a total for the war of 98,370.

Following are Vietnam casualties from Jan. 1 in four week totals, except for two weeks in September. Figures for wounded were not given until April.

	Dead	Wounded
Jan. 1— Jan. [illegible]	465	—
Jan. 29— Feb. 25	559	—
Feb. 26— Mar. 25	892	—

June 18— Jly. 15	892	5,400

Aug. 13— Sept. 9	632	5,039
Sept. 10— Sept. 23 ...	364	3,208

Casualty tolls for South Vietnamese, allied and Communist forces also declined last week. South Vietnamese military headquarters said 96 government troops were killed, 380 wounded and 15 missing, compared with 215 killed, 591 wounded and 47 missing a week earlier.

Other allied forces lost 37 killed, 88 wounded and none missing. A week earlier, the total had been 46 killed, 126 wounded and none missing.

The U.S. Command said enemy casualties included 1,134 killed, compared with 1,744 a week before.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Part of the reason for the delay by Congress in passing a needed federal income tax increase legislation is due to politics and cold feet but not all.

Congress has not in modern times tackled the nation's problems boldly except during the legislative honeymoon enjoyed by President Lyndon B. Johnson after entering the White House.

Secretary of the Treasury Fowler laid it on the line when he said Congress had a choice of pleasing constituents now or getting them in a jam later.

The near money panic aggravated by congressional timidity last year still is fresh in the public's mind. Inflationary and high interest pressures again are sending up storm warnings about the type of economic weather which lies ahead.

Republicans are making political capital of the situation by asking the President to cut domestic spending instead of demanding a tax increase. It won't work and they know it.

The most that can be expected from this tactic, aside from the political capital sought by Republicans, is that the President will apply his foot, however lightly, to the brakes.

He is committed to spending liberally. It's part of his effort to buy a Great Society, which has been endorsed at the polls by the American people.

The nonpolitical aspect of the barriers to a tax increase is represented by a fellow Democrat, who has a reputation for independent action, Chairman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas. Before Mills will give his stamp of approval he wants a blueprint from President Johnson showing how much money will be needed to pursue the war in Vietnam and just how he plans to spend it.

There has been a complete lack of candor on this subject by the administration in the past.

Hopefully, Mills will get the information he requires. The credibility gap is real and not just a political term. Democrats complain about it as much as Republicans.

But whether Mills is satisfied by presidential disclosure the American people need the tax increase for protection against inflation. The danger is not theoretical. It is real.

SEN. LONG'S UNION BOOSTERS

It is certainly interesting to note the calibre of organizations that have rallied to the re-election cause of Missouri's junior U. S. Senator, Edward V. Long. The organizations that have thus far wholeheartedly endorsed our junior Senator, without so much as knowing who his opponents will be, give loud testimony to the record of Sen. Long during his lackluster career in Washington.

Organizations that have rallied to the short end of the Long cause include these St. Louis unions:

Teamsters
Steamfitters
Electrical Workers
United Auto Workers
Sheet Metal Workers
Retail Clerks
Building Trade locals

The St. Louis locals plan to rally state-wide union support for the junior Senator, raise funds in his behalf, and generally rally behind him as he seeks another six years in Washington.

The question as to why these unions would support Sen. Long so early, in view of the fact that no one knows who will be opposing him, indicates the union chiefs believe no one else can do their bidding quite like Ed Long.

Sen. Long should make the most of his organized labor support; he certainly won't get such a rousing endorsement from the hundreds of thousands of Missourians who believe neither in Ed Long nor the cause of organized labor in St. Louis.

Widows seem to mourn for bad husbands as much as for good ones.

It's a wet, wet, wet, wet world. And cool, man, cool these September mornings.

Autumn is only four days away, but the grass won't stop growing. It hasn't all summer; the family mower never got its midsummer siesta. Trees and shrubs are lush with green foliage, and late flowers bloom prodigiously.

In Missouri the bluestem pastures still are rich with grass and thick with cattle. Across the Mid-West the corn is, in Oscar Hammerstein's phrase, as high as an elephant's eye.

To the west, on the high plains, sorghums grow thick and green, and broomcorn is more than head high. The sparse pastures of Eastern Colorado carry early summer populations of cattle. Down at Rocky Ford, growers complain that the flavor of their distinctive cantaloupes has been hurt by too much rain. And on both slopes of the Rockies motel and resort operators suffer as wet days and floods and rumors of floods keep tourists away.

While the northeastern corner of the country has suffered from heat and drought, it has been a strange summer in a diametrically opposite way in the Mid-West. In fact, it has scarcely been summer at all, as this part of the nation knows it. Wet and for the most part cool since early June, the weather has been, in the old California phrase, very unusual.

So, quite understandably, we may greet autumn next Saturday with something less than our usual eagerness. Summer's damp days may have interfered with our plans at times. But they have given the farmer and the city gardener lush growth and rich production of flower and fruit and grain. They have filled streams and lakes and ponds.

In some places they have become too much of a good thing, inundating lowlands and flooding towns. There have been times, admittedly when we yearned for the drier air and even the warmth of our traditional Mid-Western summer.

But on the whole the lush season now passing into history has been a delight, and we approach its end with regret.

FEW REALLY BELIEVE IT

Does the U. S. public, generally, believe the widespread charges of "police brutality"? The Gallup Poll, in a nationwide survey, found the answer was "No."

Among whites questioned, only 6 per cent thought that police brutality existed in their area. Among Negroes, 14 per cent believed the charges.

Said the poll: "The difference is not so great as might be expected following the wide publicity accorded alleged police brutality during the recent riots."

And yet such inciters as Stokely Carmichael and Rap Brown would have you believe that it is the worst -- but most Americans would like to see these two locked up, especially.

NEW YORK (AP) — Anonymous remarks that every boss gets tired of finding in the office suggestion box:

"Did you know that the guy who was boss here before you is alive and doing well in Argentina?"

"We've tried everything else— so why not put some gin in the water cooler and see if THAT'll pep up the office."

"It has been 23 years since I've had a merit raise. What are you trying to do— set a new course record for stinginess?"

"Roses are red, violets are blue, the senior vice president is a muttonhead— and so are you!"

"Little holes can sink the biggest ship, and being wasteful in small ways can wreck a business. For example, I have figured out that every one in the office could retire a year early if they would just use a single paper towel when they wash their hands, instead of two or three."

"This wouldn't be a bad place for a nice girl to work if only the executives wore boxing gloves. The next one is going to get sprayed with insect repellent— and I'm not joking."

"Hey, boss, I'm one of the cutest secretaries in the office, and I've had a crush on you for months and months. I would just love to paw your chubby cheeks and run my fingers through your thinning hair. Now, don't you wish you knew who I am?"

"Enclosed in this envelope is a dead cockroach. I killed it in the company cafeteria. I'm giving you fair warning: If I find another one there, I'm going to turn the company in to the Board of Health as a public menace."

"I love to listen to the piped-in music as I ride up to our floor in the automatic elevator. But they never play anything by Mozart. Does our firm have an anti-Mozart policy? If they'd just play a Mozart symphony, I'm sure I'd be happy riding up and down in the elevator all morning."

"There is only one surefire way of improving this joint, but who wants to be arrested for arson?"

"In the locker room I overhead one of the guys in the treasurer's office bragging that he had sneaked home three office pencils this week for his kids. How long are you going to let him get away with it?"

"There's nothing wrong with office morale that a 15 per cent Christmas bonus wouldn't improve."

Probably concerned both with an increase in payroll taxes and also with giving the Federal government price fixing powers, the nation's independent business proprietors are opposed to the bills now before the Congress to include the cost of prescription drugs among the medical expenses covered under Medicare.

In a nationwide vote conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, on bills introduced by Senator Joseph Montoya, N.M., and Representative John Dingell, Michigan, only 30 per cent voted in favor, 64 per cent registered opposition, with 6 per cent undecided.

In Missouri the vote was 66 per cent opposed, 28 per cent in favor, with 6 per cent undecided.

The proposed legislation would pay in addition to hospital and physician's bills for prescription drugs after the first $25. There is no limit set on the amount of drugs that would be paid for by Medicare, nor do the bills carry any provision for financing the cost of this addition to the program for which no estimates are made.

In addition, the identical bills would give the Federal government substantial control over the handling of prescription drugs. For one things, it is provided that at least once per year the government would publish a list of approved drugs and biologicals giving the generic name, and also the trade name under which these drugs are sold. Presumably any drug that did not carry government endorsement would not be included.

The government would also then determine how much these drugs should cost the druggist and set up a schedule of prices based on the druggist's cost of acquisition, plus what is described as a reasonable fee for professional services.

The proposed measure would also set up another bureau under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to be known as the Formulary Committee and also an advisory group to the Formulary Committee.

While the independent business proprietors, faced with high interest rates and increasing taxes undoubtedly oppose any measure which promises to further increase taxes while the Vietnam uncertainty exists, opposition to this proposal is also undoubtedly based on the traditional resistance toward government intervention into private business especially in the realm of price fixing.

MASS-MERCHANDISING PHILOSOPHY

Probably no business requires a higher degree of skill and knowledge than retail distribution. It is a business where homework and not luck is the requisite of success. Size or type of outlet has no bearing on the question of survival. As one retailing authority has pointed out, "The retailing race is not necessarily going to the giant but it is going to the expert."

Samuel Feinberg describes factors involved in successful merchandising: "Survival, let alone prosperity, depends on problems of competition, accessibility and attractiveness of main store and branches, image in the community, loyalty of the new generation of teens and young marrieds as well as older customers, access to needed capital, expense control, relations of executive and rank-and-file personnel, ability to draw competent young people into the organization -- and keep them, continuity of professional management, proper merchandising and research assistance."

Today's largest chain stores had their inception in the minds of pioneers in retailing -- pioneers who believed in the philosophy of mass merchandising -- moving the largest possible quantity of goods at minimum prices. They believed in giving the customer full value.

More often than not, these pioneers began business with little more than an idea and a determination to make good. Their names have become legendary in the annals of American business. The enterprises they started continue to prosper today for just one reason: they are run by experts who grew up in the retailing business -- a business that in general is today giving the consumer more for his money than ever before.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Ronald Reagan, Governor of California and potential candidate for President, today (Sept. 28) returns to the campus of his Alma Mater, this time not to lead a student strike or to stroll with a coed and a blanket on his arm, but to dedicate a library.

His return to the haunts of his youth at Eureka college in Illinois highlights the remarkable turnabout of the man who has suddenly jumped from B-picture status in Hollywood to A-political status on the presidential horizon. No candidate, no politician has changed more radically than the man elected governor partly by campaigning against student strikes at the University of California.

How radical is the change is best illustrated by the student strike which Reagan led at Eureka College. The governor tells about it in his book "Where's The Rest of Me?"

The students had demanded that Bert Wilson, President of Eureka, be fired; not unlike the manner in which California students demanded that their dean and president be fired. They presented a petition to the board of trustees, and when this turned down they held a mass meeting and struck. Reagan was chosen to be chief speaker at the strike rally.

"They came to their feet with a roar," Reagan wrote later. "Hell, with two more lines I could have had them riding through every middlesex village and farm."

Reagan was frank to the point of bringing blushes to some of the staid ladies who voted for him to be Governor of California.

KEGGING AT EUREKA

"Eureka had about 250 students," he wrote, "roughly 130 boys and 120 girls, enough to make any sex competition interesting.

"There was the custom of 'kegging,' " he went on. "Eureka was the only place I've known where you could walk down the street with your girl on one arm and your blanket on the other without starting a scandal... The cemetery was a three - minute walk from the campus. Everyone had a favorite grave, usually with a large enough tombstone to provide a backrest for two and a sizeable pool of shadow."

The Governor of California expounds at some length on life both at Eureka and in Hollywood, and his prose will make interesting reading if he ever really runs for President.

He tells the story of a lady who asked John Barrymore if he thought Romeo and Juliet had engaged in intimacies. Barrymore, according to Reagan, replied: "Madame, in the Chicago company definitely."

Regarding sex, Reagan comments: "Like the old adage about enforced romance -- when it's inevitable, relax and enjoy it."

Referring to Jane Russell who starred in "The Outlaw," he wrote: "The sheriff had found Billy the Kid with his girl. 'OK,' said Billy, as the mamacious figure of Jane Russell stood sideways between them, 'You stole my horse, I stole your girl.' The Sheriff nodded. 'Sure,' he replied, 'tit for tat.' "

Reagan also cities chapter and verse regarding his joining various left wing groups and serving as a sponsor on committees backing Helen Gahagan Douglas when she ran against Richard Nixon for the senate. Reagan was then a member of Americans for Democratic action and was constantly referred to favorably by peoples world, the left-wing newspaper which billed him as the star in the broadcast "Operation Terror," a series for "Mobilization For Democracy," labeled a Communist front by the house un-American activities committee.

In contrast, Reagan today serves as an adviser to the Young Americans for Freedom, the rightest of all right- wing youth groups, brands the graduated income tax as "Marxist" and referred to Sen. Tom Kuchel, the California Republican and senate whip as a political "traitor."

Thus speaks the many - sided Ronald Reagan, the man who now returns to the haunts of his youth, a changed but not necessarily wiser man.

UNFUNNY RATS

Rats were not as funny as house members last week voted by a 129-128 teller vote to reverse their action of July 20, when the house laughed off the bill to combat rats in city slums. For this reason, Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., moved that congressmen have five days to extend and revise their jokes.

However, the debate was heated. Rep. Frances Bolton, R-Ohio, who later voted for the $40 million fund, inquired, with tongue in cheek: "How much per rat?"

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., who proposed the rat control amendment jointly with Rep. Charles Mathias, R-Md., replied that the program would cost the taxpayers "about 40 cents a rat."

Rep. William Ryan, D-N.Y. reminded colleagues that they could no longer ridicule the problem as they did on July 20, when there was a "hilarious discussion of two - legged and four-legged rats, or discrimination against country rats in favor of city rats."

The dull but vocal Rep. Joel Broyhill, R-Va., shouted that the house was "caught in a wave of emotionalism and sheer political demagoguery." He urged colleagues to face up to "fiscal responsibility" by voting no.

Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., declared that his colleages were "reacting to pressure."

"Not very long ago," he said, "a group of protesters, two-legged rats, came down here from New York City to demonstrate, and the police had to drag them out of the galleries. I suppose a good many people are reacting to that pressure here today."

But young Andy Jacobs of Indianapolis, a supporter of rat control, commended the house on the "change in the nature of debate."

"Members are saying 'right now' instead of 'rat now.' I am wondering if this is not because the subject has come up suddenly.

"This time those who oppose rat extermination did not have the opportunity to prepare some good humor on the subject. Therefore, I ask unanimous consent that all members have five legislative days in which to revise and extend their jokes on this subject."

UN AGAIN IN SESSION

The United Nations General Assembly has met again in New York City in a session scheduled to last until December 19. The delegates from the 122 member-nations will talk -- and talk and talk -- about various problems facing the world, and much of the talk will be directed against the United States. It is not to be expected that anything effective will or can be done by the UN to solve the problems.

All this could have been said about almost any past session of the UN General Assembly. But there is one unusual feature this year. A representative of a communist country -- Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu of Rumania -- is president of the Assembly for the first time, and with U.S. support. This development provides additional evidence, as if any were needed, that the UN will do nothing to combat international communism, the one great threat to peace in the world today.

The plain truth is that the UN has to be ineffective. The 122 nations have one vote each in the General Assembly. The Maldive Islands, with a population of only about 100,000, has the same voting power as the United States. Most of the small new nations have no concept of individual freedom and governmental freedom as we know them in this country. They are pulled this way and that by all sorts of considerations ranging from emotional appeals against "colonialism" to hardly concealed vote - buying. The UN has come to seem an unreal institution. But its use as a sounding board for the enemies of freedom is very real. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL?

Justice Dept. Slows Up Probe of Missing Strike Funds.

New York: -- There's a district union scandal which the Justice Dept. and some of its intrepid attorneys are handling mighty gingerly, though it now appears that almost a quarter of a million dollars is involved. How much, really, no one knows because all the records positively were declared stolen just before they could be picked up by the government.

True, it would take the man from U.N.C.L.E. and James Bond, with an assist from an old-timer called Sherlock Holmes, to unravel the mystery because thousands of chicken eggs, hundreds of turkeys, Copacabana night chits, Florida hotels, the Roosevelt and Yonkers racetracks, unvouchered checks for scores of thousands of dollars and stupefying cases of liquor are involved.

But so is the reputation of a militant union known as the International Union of Electrical Workers and its young, new-breed president Paul Jennings who is on the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee, which says thou shalt not covet thy union's treasury.

There is no doubt of Mr. Jennings integrity. It is the integrity of the labor movement and two officials who headed the union's huge District Three (New York-New Jersey) - which holds one-third of the organization's membership -- that is up for grabs.

For weeks now I have been reviewing reports and records of what appears to be one of the most colossal mishandlings of district funds in labor's history.

What comes out of all this vast accounting work reaches further than $800 and $700 and $500 checks being made out in Florida for expenses allegedly disbursed by the District President Milton Weihrauch at Florida hotels during an AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting -- at which there does not appear to be any reason for his attendance.

More is involved here than "round figure" checks, generally unvouchered, for sums such as $5,000 and $4,800 and $1,600, etc. More is involved here than the fact that many checks were endorsed by mysterious persons or friends of the District President Weihrauch and Treasurer, Joe Iozzi.

More even than the District bookkeeper endorsing five checks totaling more than $10,000 for purposes she never knew.

More is involved than Mr. Weihrauch's telling his board that his life had been threatened -- and therefore that his life insurance policy, paid for by the union, should be raised. This increased its loan value, though generally such insurances should be term policies.

More here is involved than huge restaurant tabs ($11,000) being signed at a fine Newark, N.J., restaurant, and in Atlantic City, or the generous use of an American Express credit card.

What is, indeed, of deep concern is the auditor's report, made up of whatever could be gleaned from banks and merchants, etc., gas stations, travel expense payments, etc., that only $141,000 is traceable. Also, "some $60,000 in checks were made out to 'cash' sometimes unsupported by vouchers, or where vouchers were present, they contained general categories like 'strike assistance,' 'local assistance,' or 'meetings' without mentioning even the name of the local union, never mind the alleged purposes of these checks."

Included among the checks made out to cash were the five totaling more than $10,000 endorsed by the bookkeeper, checks for more than $8,000 made payable to Milton Weihrauch and for more than $54,000 to Iozzi unsupported by vouchers, or meagerly explained.

There also were checks made out to cash, "strike assistance" and "meetings."

Yet many of the locals which had been on strike report they got mightily little out of all these funds. One local reports it got 150 to 200 turkeys. Another states it received 500 turkeys and 1,500 dozen eggs. It was supposed to have received $16,000. Still another reports donations of 1,000 chickens, and 1,000 eggs each week for seven weeks and 400 turkeys on Thanksgiving and Christmas during a stoppage. It allegedly received -- according to the District records -- $27,500. There was a district check for $1,000.

There also was a check, unvouchered, to a poultry firm from District Three, for $7,000.

Some of the locals who were supposed to have received the District strike relief funds said they got nothing.

Thus the issue is: What happened to the most sacred of such fraternal support, strike relief, while union brothers and sisters were on the picket lines, payless.

Brother Weihruach is being defended in the intra - union developments by the eminent counselor Ed Bennett Williams. This is unusual. Handsome Ed Williams rarely takes an unimportant case.

Important, it is. The basic issue is far more than high living. Or making a juggle of financial records. If Mr. Weihrauch has a case he should say so. The public and the rank and file have the right to know what happens to such funds on the strike front. How does a militant district union's image become today's picture of Dorian Gray?

Unless this strange handling of funds is cleared up by the labor movement as well as a grand jury, what value ever again will high - sounding statements of ethics have in the marketplace where we all meet -- the labor leader, the rank and file, the employer and the people.

Kegler's Korner

By MARY MEYER

A little catching up to do this week. Yours truly was gone on a little jaunt until Tuesday night.

The Friday Bowlettes had a change - up in their secretaries but turned in both weeks' reports.

For the week of Sept. 15, high individual game was 187 rolled by Dorothy Pratt. Wilma Acord rolled high individual series of 502. High team single game of 727 was rolled by Rogers Oil and high team three games series of 2061 was rolled by Nowell Construction.

Games won and lost, turned in, were up-to-date totals and are not being reported at this time. Team standings will be reported approximately mid-season.

For the week of Sept. 22, Mildred Cockrell rolled high individual game of 187 and Vera Gaston rolled high individual series of 487. Ziegenhorn rolled both high team game and series of 787-2087.

Hilda McClung shot a triplicate of 121. Reported splits picked up were Linda Hill, 5-7; Bev Black and Hilda McClung, 5-10; Charlene Hubbard, 4-5-7 and Virginia Dollar, 4-7-9.

Sept. 19 in the Delta Imperialettes, Pat Howard rolled a big 224, big for anyone but particularly for a young bowler with a 113 average. Congratulations, Pat. Norma Baker had high individual series of 527.

Campbell's Farms rolled both high team single game and high team series of 900-2522.

Reported splits: Jean Wilson, 5-10; Elsie Butler, 5-7; Anita Ziegler, 4-7-10 and 3-5-10.

In games won and lost, Campbell's Farms rolled over Ziegenhorn, 4-0; likewise A and B Pastries over L and A Laundry, 4-0. Crown 3-Potlatch 1; Zieglers 3-Progressive 1; City Police 3-Reiss Dairy 1 while Barketts won 2½ to Ferrell's 1½.

Sept. 20 in the Royal Kegler's League, Thelma Hampton blasted a 214-577 to collect high individual games and series. In fact, the team Thelma bowls on, outdid themselves, as far as Holyfield was concerned, with high team game and series of 1071 and 3067.

H. Herb Stephens steamed over Holyfield Flying 4-0. No Names snowed Bank of Sikeston 4-0. Liberty Super Market won 3½ to General Oil Company's ½. In other contests, Lewis Furniture won 2½ to Malone and Hyde's 1½. There are lots of ½ games to plague the secretaries. Wade's Body Shop split 2-2 with First National Bank and C. D. Alcorn split 2-2 with Busch Bavarian.

Splits recorded: Virginia Holsinger, Mary Scott, Mary Meyer, 5-10; Jean Anderson 5-7.

Visitors going through a large lumber mill in the Pacific Northwest may see how bark is blasted off logs with high-pressure jets of water. Wafer-thin veneer is swiftly peeled off logs with a sharp saw.

Lions Success

DETROIT (AP) — Mike Lucci has a simple explanation for the new-found success of the Detroit Lions.

"We're just playing a lot better," said the middle linebacker.

The defense was the National Football League Lions' strong suit for years, but this year the offense, sparked by the running of rookie Mel Farr, has grabbed the attention.

The Lions tied the world champion Green Bay Packers 17-17 in their season opener, then crushed Cleveland 31-14 Sunday.

Lucci thinks the defense is better, too, and gives a lot of credit to new coach Joe Schmidt and defensive coach Jim David.

"We've got a couple of new defenses which gives us something to go to in case we're getting hurt," he said, "and that's something we didn't have before."

Schmidt was the middle linebacker for the Lions for 13 years, but when he retired last year and became an assistant coach Lucci took over the job.

He filled in capably, intercepting five passes last year. The 27-year-old athlete stands 6-foot-2 and weighs 235 pounds.

There have been a lot of changes in the Lion defense this year, but Lucci thinks they've helped. Lem Barney, a rookie, moved in at cornerback. Jerry Rush took over at tackle when veteran Roger Brown was traded.

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — Former auto racing champion Stirling Moss of London Wednesday set off a dynamite charge in a ground breaking ceremony for a new race track which will be known as the Michigan International Speedway.

KC Fans Enjoyed Athletics' Sweep

KANSAS CITY (AP)— A handful of diehard baseball fans, sipping hot chocolate and coffee to keep warm in 50 - degree weather, whooped it up Wednesday night for the Athletics in what may be their final appearance in Kansas City.

The A's, deep in the American League cellar and with nothing to lose, closed out their home season by winning both ends of a doubleheader from the pennant contending Chicago White Sox, 5-2, and 4-0.

"We might as well see the A's now, we might not see them again," was the consensus of the 15,325 onlookers.

The Athletics are rumored to be moving to the West Coast next season.

But Wednesday night, they still belonged to Kansas City and the crowd, blanketed and clad against the autumn chill, responded warmly to the victorious finish.

Jack Layton, the A's public address announcer, recalled between games that he saw them open here April 12, 1955, by defeating Detroit, 6-2.

"I saw their very first game," he said, "and I guess I'm going to see their last."

DID YOU KNOW -- that the average age of a track star when he reaches his peak is 24 years?

A's Assist Twins, Sweep Twin Bill from White Sox

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eddie Stanky's Walking Dead finally appear to have died, stricken with the last lethal blows from a most unexpected source.

Poised to seize the lead in the daffy American League pennant race Wednesday night, the Chicago White Sox instead tumbled to fourth place, just an eyelash away from elimination.

The villains were the usually harmless Kansas City Athletics, whose lease to the cellar has been locked up for weeks. The A's swept a twi-night doubleheader from the White Sox 5-2 and 4-0, leaving Chicago with nothing more to hope for than a slim chance of forcing a playoff.

Front-running Minnesota bowed to California 5-1 and Boston dropped its second straight to Cleveland 6-0 Wednesday afternoon. Detroit was idle. That meant that when the White Sox took the field against the A's, they were a mere one-half game behind the Twins and led the three other contenders in the vital loss column.

Less than six hours later, they were on the brink of being completely out of the picture. The double loss left them with an 89-70 record and a maximum possibility of 92 victories if they sweep their three remaining games against Washington.

Minnesota has already won 91 and Boston 90. Those two teams play their last two games against each other. If they split, Chicago must sweep to tie Minnesota. If Boston wins both games, a White Sox sweep would tie the Red Sox. If Minnesota wins both games, the White Sox are through, regardless of what they do.

In the National League, San Francisco beat New York 7-2 and Houston edged Philadelphia 1-0 and Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles 1-0.

It was a characteristic lack of hitting that did the Sox in. They managed just seven hits in the doubleheader and that, Virginia, is not the kind of attack that wins pennants.

Jim Gosger's three hits drove in three runs for the A's and Chuck Dobson handcuffed the Sox on two hits until the ninth inning of the opener. Then Chicago pushed across both its runs but Paul Lindblad pitched out of the jam and saved Dobson's 10th victory.

Jim (Catfish) Hunter won his 13th in the nightcap, allowing just three hits and started Kansas City's winning four-run rally in the sixth inning with a single.

"Do I think we have a chance?" asked Stanky, the White Sox manager. "How do I answer that?"

"I've been in baseball 30 years. I've seen seven runs in the last of the ninth this year. I've seen a winning streak of 10. I've seen us in first place. I've seen us in sixth place.

"We win three and I'm happy. I'm paid to manage the White Sox 162 games, or more, if necessary."

The Angels, who finish the season with four games against Detroit, hopped on ex-teammate Dean Chance and stunned the Twins. It gave California two victories in the three game series with the league leaders.

Don Mincher, a former Twin, started a four-run fourth inning against Chance with his 22nd home run of the year. Chance, working with just two day's rest, blamed himself.

"I blew it," he said, "nobody but me. I just made some bad pitches— high pitches. There's no excuse for it. If it costs us the pennant, I'll have something to think about all winter."

Cal Ermer, Minnesota's manager, was glad to be finished with California. "I think the Angels will be tough on Detroit," he said. "They sure were tough on us."

Three Cleveland pitchers stymied Boston on five hits and catcher Joe Azcue exulted, "we put the nails in the coffin," after the Indians blanked the Red Sox.

Rookie Richie Scheinblum smashed three hits, scored three runs and drove in another. Azcue had two hits and two RBI.

THE POWERFUL LEG of Jim Bakken, St. Louis Cardinals placekicker, accounted for a new National Football League record of seven field goals in one game. He did it against Pittsburgh.

Versatile Is Arkansas' Hoehn

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. -- Tall, muscular and a fine speciman of man, Steve Hoehn would not be difficult to pick out of a crowd as a college football player. He's the kind Norman Rockwell would sketch for a magazine cover. Make the setting a classroom or an art exhibit and the job becomes something else again.

At 6-4 and 204 pounds, he wears the unpretentious identity of "monster-man" in the widely-copied Razorback defense. And-- Stephen Michael Hoehn (pronounced Hane) is well-equipped to fill his role of part-linebacker and part-defensive back. The position calls for the skills of a very versatile athlete. With Steve Hoehn, however, versatility does not stop with Razorback football.

Besides collecting high school academic honors and the coveted Eagle rank in scouting, Steve is an artist of local repute. To hear him tell it, though, he's only a casual amateur.

"I had a good teacher in high school who really knew her art," he said, "and she got me started off right. Water colors first -- and then on to the oils."

Ever win in competition?

"Well," came the reply, "I like to work mostly with landscapes and I was lucky enough to take a couple of prizes at local shows. One of them was a grand-prize winner."

Other than excellent on an esthetic nature, the Malden, Mo., product takes pride in his classroom work at the U of A. He ranks near the top of his class in Industrial Engineering courses, the career he plans to pursue upon graduation.

"My courses involve a lot more theory than some of the other engineering studies," he said. "Less hard facts and more room for individual work."

Steve Hoehn

As far as Arkansas opponents are concerned, there is nothing to theorize when it comes to Hoehn's style of play on the gridiron. He is rugged, quick and possesses an ideal aptitude for this quasi-linebacker position. Razorback fans will atest those ARE hard, cold facts.

"Nothing speaks louder than actions on the field," says Steve. "I'm a senior and I think senior ball-players should set an example with their play. We've got some sophomores on defense and they're going to make mistakes while they learn. When I got into the game as a sophomore, I nearly went crazy out there."

As a bright-eyed freshman right from Malden (population - 5,200), Hoehn quickly adapted to the winning tradition at Arkansas. The Shoats swept through a five-game season undefeated that year -- something that Steve remembers with pride.

"In high school, Malden didn't exactly burn up the conference when I played," he recalls. "We had a perfect record during my sophomore season - - no wins and 10 losses."

Now married to the former Judy Shepard (also from Malden), Steve and his wife are close friends of Nancy and Tommy Trantham, Arkansas' senior defensive halfback and his former Wilson Sharp roommate. When Steve and Tommy were single and roomed together in the dorm, they staged a continuous battle for game interceptions. Tommy now leads, 6-3, over a two-year period.

MU Meets Intersectional Rival Northwestern at Evanston Saturday

COLUMBIA -- Missouri and Northwestern, two intersectional rivals both "up" mentally for unexpected victories last week, square off at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Evanston in what shapes up as a top-notch defensive struggle.

Each relied heavily on ball-hawking techniques in its season-opener. A three-point pregame favorite, the Tigers scored touchdowns on a punt return and interception to trip Southern Methodist 21-0, and in the process vaulted to tenth place in the United Press International coaches poll.

A Big Ten Conference also ran last season, Northwestern forced highly-ranked Miami of Florida into a costly interception and fumbled punt attempt for its scores in its 12-7 surprise. Coach Alex Agase's Wildcats are now 14th best in the UPI ratings.

If the two rugged defenses can counter-balance one another in N.U.'s Dycke Stadium, the outcome may revolve around how well Mizzou's offense can compete with the Wildcats, a bigger but perhaps slower unit than SMU.

Both teams feature senior quarterbacks -- the Tigers' Gary Kombrink and the Wildcats' Bill Melzer -- and their attacking pattern off an unbalanced line is similar. Northwestern tends to be more air-orientated, but even so the Bengals don't have the running threat of all-purpose halfback Chico Kurzawski.

It was Kurzawski, the Chicago Prep Football Player of the Year in 1964, who put the winning points on the scoreboard against Miami. In true turnabout, he hit Melzer with a nine-yard touchdown pass to register the victory.

The Black and Gold stayed mainly on the ground in toppling SMU. Kombrink gained a career-high 128 yards in 20 carries and hard driving fullback Barry Lischner covered 72 more, including a six-yard touchdown thrust. However, M. U. shined even brighter defensiiely.

Sophomore Butch Davis quickly made his presence felt in his initial varsity test when he intercepted a pass and raced 53 yards for Missouri's first 1967 points. His running mate at defensive halfback, veteran Roger Wehrli, returned a punt 64 yards for the final score.

"Missouri uses the Woody Hayes' Ohio State style of offense, running 90 percent of the time and passing when they have to," Agase said. "Kombrink likes to keep the ball," he added.

Defensively, they remind you of some Murray Warmath's better defensive teams at Minnesota -- sound and solid. They don't make many mistakes."

Agase felt Northwestern won its opener because "the players have great belief in themselves." He singled out guard Bruce Gunstra as a cinch all-American and also pointed to linebacker John Cornell who recorded 14 tackles against Miami.

Coach Dan Devine and assistants noted top effort in the performance of both Mizzou lines. They praised the blocking of end Marty Berg and center Con Rees and the strong, balanced tackling, led by guard Lee Mungai.

Injury - wise, the Tigers emerged fairly unscathed from the opener. Kombrink sprained an ankle, Mungai sustained a minor head injury and Leschner required fluid drained from his oft hurt knee. Defensive end Elmer Benhardt suffered a hyper-extended elbow and halfback Larry Moore a back ailment.

All figure too start Saturday. If Benhardt can't, Russ Washington is scheduled to move into the spot he held last season until being injured, and Jim Anderson will spell him at tackle. In addition, halfback Greg Cook, out since Aug. 31 with an appendectomy, may make the trip to Evanston.

Night Desk GR1-1137

Our Sports Night desk will be open from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. each Friday night and Saturday morning during the prep gridiron football season.

All coaches are reminded to call in their game during that time in order to keep receiving their complimentary paper.

Matthews' Jim Hart to Speak at Clinic

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Arkansas State University's second annual Basketball Clinic will be held on the Jonesboro campus on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 13 and 14.

Coach Marvin Speight announced that the featured speaker for the clinic will be Memphis State Tiger head coach Moe Iba. Iba will speak twice during the two-day clinic.

The clinic will be conducted in a lecture and discussion form with each lecturer-coach talking about a different phase of basketball. At the end of each day the lecturers will be panel members for a panel discussion with questions being offered by the coaches attending the clinic.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. on Oct. 13 and the first session begins at 3 p.m. Coach Iba will speak first at the 8 p.m. session. Other lecturers were selected from different high schools in the tri-state area. They include: Charlie Eagle of Jonesboro, James Hart of Matthews, Mo., Glen Siler of Palestine, Johnny Widner of Leachville and Pat Foster of Fairview High School in Camden. Also on the staff is Gary Holland, coach of Southern Baptist College.

The dates of the clinic were selected to coincide with the beginning of high school play and the start of college practice sessions.

Seventy coaches attended the clinic last year and Coach Speight expects about 80 to 100 registrants for this year's clinic. "We felt like the clinic last year was a success," Speight stated, "and we look forward to another successful clinic."

Dawson on Duty In Thailand

U.S. AIR FORCES, Thiland -- Airman Second Class James A. Dawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis E. Dawson Sr. of Bernie, Mo., is on duty at Korat Royal Thai Air Force Base, Thialand.

Airman Dawson, a construction equipment repairman, is a member of the air force logistics command in support of the Pacific air forces. Before his arrival in Thailand, he was assigned to an air force unit at Washington, D. C.

The airman is a 1966 graduate of Bernie high school.

DETROIT (AP)-- Wayne Hightower, who played his college basketball at Kansas, has been signed to a one-year contract by the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball Association.

Hightower reportedly was igned for $14,000. He had sought a three-year contract.

A Detroit spokesman said Hightower was Piston property until Sept. 20, although he had signed with Denver of the American Basketball Association. Previous court rulings indicated Hightower was legitimate property of the Pistons, the spokesman said.

BILLINGS, Mont. -- Henry Hank, Detroit, knocked out Les Borden, Montreal 4, light-heavyweights.

ATLANTA (AP)-- David Love of Atlanta and Lee Trevino of El Paso, Tex., shot three-under-par 69s Wednesday and tied for the low professional prize in the pro-amateur prelude to the Atlanta Golf Tournament.

Bell Withdraws Rate Request

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has withdrawn its request for permission to pass on local gross receipts taxes to its customers and the Public Service Commission dismissed complaints of customers.

The company said it figured the cost of explaining the complicated procedure by which it would have boosted its Missouri revenues by $1.8 million would be too great to make it worthwhile.

Briefly, Bell had planned to reduce over-all rates then make a surcharge out of local gross receipts taxes levied by municipalities. The net result would have been an increase for Bell, an increase for some customers and a decrease for others.

In its withdrawal request Bell said "the company wants to be understood that it later will file revised tariffs to produce earnings representing a fair return on the value of its property devoted to its public services in Missouri."

The utility did not outline the form of its proposed new rate hike request or indicate how soon it would come.

Among the complaints against the earlier rate change were 55 from hotels and motels in metropolitan Kansas City and St. Louis.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

Sometime before the end of this year the population of the United States will move past 200 million. Nearly 87 million of the American people will be 25 years old or younger. Obviously this group will exert a great and a growing influence in the choice of those who are to become our future leaders and largely they will make the decisions that determine our future. For this reason alone it is imperative that these 85 million young people and the increasing youths who will follow them, need the very best education that our nation can afford. They need not only the tools and the skills of learning, in order that they may continue to learn and to grow in knowledge, but they need experience in making decisions, hopefully, decisions that will be correct for their place and time in society and in the history of our nation and world.

The kind of world that they, our children live in, will in the long run, depend upon how successful we are in providing adequate schooling, sound education in all of its many aspects. Even good schools, which we have the ability to provide, but are not doing so over the nation as a whole, cannot do this job alone. It requires the cooperative efforts of all elements of our society, of all of our social and educational institutions and most certainly the environment of sound and responsible home.

There was a time when our school tax levy in this district was about the highest, if not the highest, in Missouri. We did not boast about this, but we were proud that the people of the district believed in good schools to the extent that they repteatedly approved the tax levy by an overwhelming majority. We had to do so if we were to have anything like decent schools for our children. Because of our very low tax base, our valuation per child, the levy had to be high to bring in enough funds to operate the school program. Even so, the $4.00 levy was not, and is not, as high as it seems in relation to our property evaluations in Scott County. According to the State Tax Commission last year Scott County property was only valued at 26.15 per cent of its actual value, considerably less than the 30 per cent evaluation which the State Tax Commission desires. Some of our counties evaluate their real estate and personal property as high as 34.92 per cent of its actual value. The average for the state last year was 28.97 per cent of true value.

This simply means that the tax payer is paying more taxes per unit of levy in a county where valuations are higher than they are in the lower evaluated districts.

These are a few of the districts in the state with tax levies equal to or exceeding our levy: Eureka, $4.00; Ferguson, $4.27; Festus, $4.90; Fulton, $4.10; Hazelwood, $4.40; Kirkwood, $4.47; Lee Summit, $4.25; Liberty, $4.49; Raytown, $4.45; Riverview Gardens, $4.05; St. Charles, $4.36; University City, $4.29; Webster Groves, $4.07; and Wellston, $4.49.

All are in counties having a higher ratio of tax evaluation to true value than Scott County. All have more tax evaluation per child than does our district.

Sometime ago the Board of Education appointed an insurance advisory committee to recommend the best possible insurance coverage for the district's properties and responsibilities and to, from time to time, evaluate the insurance program in order to keep it up to date. In essence, to get the most in insurance coverage for the tax payers dollar. Our district is indebted to this committee for its very considerable amount of work and effort in preparing the very comprehensive and detailed studies and proposals which are required, as we are to all of our local insurors who assist the committee and cooperate so well with the Board. Currently the committee is composed of Joe Leslie, chairman, and members Keith Ziegenhorn and William Huff. Leslie formerly served as the Board's liason or insurance representative with the other insurance agents in the schools insurance program but, the work involved in doing so became so great that the Board felt that this was too much to ask of one individual and so appointed the three member committee. They work directly with Harold Vogel, assisted by Charles Simpson, both members of the schools administrative staff, subject to final approval of the Board of Education.

We are of the opinion that this cooperative arrangement has worked very satisfactorly and we appreciate the excellent relationship with all of our local insurance agents.

A recent survey commissioned by the U.S. Office of Education to comply with the 1964 Civil Rights Act was conducted by Professor James Coleman of John's Hopkins University. The report has created considerable comment and no little controversy. According to Coleman one of the things brought out in the study indicates that Negroes performed better when they were in integrated schools -- but lower economic group Negroes still did not perform as well as middle - class whites. "There seems to be a real advantage to Negroes, and no disadvantage to whites, in schools where there is not a majority of Negroes," he says, "but the advantage is not enough to eliminate the disadvantages with which the Negroes came." Though this may sound pessimistic, Coleman agrees that "it is really no different from the experience of the lower-class white child in heterogeneous schools in the past. They never did as well as the middle-class children. So on the basis of historical evidence, integration is not going to be the final achievement."

"The family," Professor Coleman says, "can be a tremendous influencing factor in school achievement. What our study really showed, was the relative weakness of the influence of the schools against family and peer influence."

A community college can be a truer "people's school" or "people's college" than perhaps any other type of higher educational institution because it's nearer to those whom it serves and its policies are planned to a greater extent by its board made up of representative citizens of its district.

It's a "people's college" in the pattern of its service. It serves: 1. those who wish to complete a 1 or 2 year technical education course for entrance of business and industry, 2. those who wish to make up education deficiencies in order to enroll in an academic or technical program, 3. those who wish to complete 1 or 2 years of academic credit and then transfer to a 4-year college or university, 4. those who wish to enroll as adults, day or night, in order to up-grade themselves in their jobs, and 5. those who wish to enroll in individual classes or full program for cultural development and enjoyment.

Such a "people's college" could well serve the Mississippi, New Madrid, Stoddard, and Scott County areas.

HINTS FOR TEENAGERS

...From your Sewing Editor

A RIDDLE IN STYLE

Can you solve this season's fashion riddle? What begins as a dress and ends in pants? If you can answer jiffy-quick, you're ready to jump into summer fun. You will find the solution in the picture above. The problem defies all rules of logic. One plus one totals a jumpsuit.

This one (Simplicity 7133, Misses' 10-16, 65c) aims for action. The dress part is sleeveless with lapped shoulder extensions, each fastened by a button stitched on through front and back tabs and held underneath with a snap. The neckline is round and cool. The pants length is mini; the pattern also includes an ankle-length jumpsuit. Positioned on the hips are patch pockets for vital odds and ends. A very important zipper closes up the front. Wear it pure and simple or try the newest belted look. When choosing fabric for the mini model, body and washability are qualities to consider. This model is made of white cotton canvas, outstanding with a tan against a background of sea and sky.

START A HAPPENING

What happens to a girl in a jumpsuit? It's a fresh new fashion which takes to old-fashioned ways like a walk in the park or a bicycle built for two. Whether you have a weekend date for a picnic and boating or a weekday job working with children, a jumpsuit is unhampered and all-girl too. For an encore, whip up a dry-off suit of terrycloth to wear on the beach. The finale ought to be ankle-length, exposing merely a gold sandaled foot. Select a soft, silky fabric swirling with butterfly colors, to flutter through the twilight zone. Keep a corduroy or double-knit copy in mind to wear with a blouse or pullover when autumn nips the air.

The making is as easy as answering the riddle. The principal parts are quickly cut out using two main pattern pieces and just as quickly sewn together. With a zippered front, the application ought to be pluperfect. This jumpsuit requires an 18" neck closure. A zipper almost goes in by itself when you follow every step of the way explained on your zipper package. If you're on to the hardware kick, put the glint of a metal zipper, in a contrasting color, into your sportive jumpsuit. You might jazz up the pull with a school emblem or personal trinket. The silky evening version prefers a coil zipper. The DO's of zippering are fully explained in Coats & Clark's leaflet CE 1146R, available free by sending your request to me along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Schorle Sells His House

50 years ago
Sept. 28, 1917

E. F. Schorle has sold his house on Gladys and Olive streets to Mrs. A. M. Myricks of LaForge.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Welman have closed their house on Trotter street and will spend the winter with their son, Herbert and family at Bell City.

Mr. and Mrs. Pab Jones and Miss Minnie Jones expect to leave Monday for Galveston, Tex., where they will make their future home.

Acceptable Words Should Be Told Child for Gutter Terms

Dear Ann Landers: What can a mother do when her preteen children repeat dirty words they hear from the neighbor's kids? Our four - year - old has come home and said some words my husband never learned till he got into the Merchant Marines.

We have washed out the boy's mouth with soap, deprived him of dessert and told him he couldn't watch the Saturday TV cartoons if he continued to talk nasty, but nothing helps. When he drops one dirty word, he picks up another. He doesn't know what the words mean and when he asks why they are bad we don't know what to tell him.

Please don't suggest that we keep him away from the neighbor's children. It is impossible. Thanks for any help you can give us. --- TRYING TO RAISE 'EM RIGHT

Dear Trying: There is no way to prevent children from hearing undesirable language from other children. By the time a youngster gets into the 8th grade he will have heard every dirty word there is. Tell your child certain words are not to be used because they are gutter words. Be emphatic, but don't make such an issue of it that he will use the words as an attention - getting device.

When a child asks what certain words mean he should be told -- and make sure that the acceptable words are substituted for the gutter words. In that way he will learn to express himself properly.

Dear Ann Landers: Now and then you print letters from people who have complaints connected with their jobs. I hope you will help me out by printing my letter. You will also be helping out hundreds of other "bag boys" who carry groceries to people's cars.

Every day I walk an extra 10 miles at least -- up and down the parking lot, my arms loaded with canned goods, because so many goofs can't remember where they parked their cars. Women are the worst. If they would just pay a little attention it would help us a whole lot. Please tell them. -- FLAT FLEET

Dear Feet: It would also help if the parking lots had some markers. A few posts with numbers or letters would do a world of good. How about it, grocers of America?

Dear Ann Landers: Two months ago a couple our age moved in next door. We had a lot in common -- bowling, swimming, playing cards and yard work.

Three weeks ago Mrs. Neighbor telephoned to say her husband left town on business and all her lights were out. She said, "I guess it must be a fuse but I don't know which one it is or what to do about it. Can you send Dick over?"

Dick went over and in five minutes the lights were on, but he stayed for two hours.

Since that evening Dick and Mrs. Neighbor have been looking cow-eyed at each other. He runs to light her cigarette (I have to light my own). When we went out together last night Dick helped her into the car. I almost fell and broke my neck.

Please don't tell me to avoid them because it's impossible. We have the same friends and everywhere we go, they are invited. What's the answer?--- GREEN EYES

Dear Eyes: In the absence of better evidence than you now have, play it cool --- no accusations, no threats, no scenes. The nicer you behave the better your chances to prevent real trouble. If you become openly accusatory, you'll shove Dick right into her understanding and comforting arms.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex and How to Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing along, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Advice to Shield Crime Can Put Man in Jam

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Fred's future looked as shaky as a pair of dice. Ordered to appear before a federal grand jury to testify against his pal Marty, he didn't know what to do. If he talked, Marty would surely be sent up the river and he, no doubt, would end up under it. Marty would have him rubbed out.

Consequently, when Marty strongly suggested that he plead the Fifth Amendment, Fred took the suggestion without question and kept his mouth shut. The "suggestion," however, boomeranged. Government agents heard about it and Marty was charged with obstructing justice.

"By influencing Fred to plead the Fifth Amendment," the judge was told, "Marty put a spike in the wheels of justice and brought it to a screeching halt."

"All I did was to advise Fred to plead the Fifth," was Marty's defense. "Surely it's no crime to inform someone of his constitutional rights."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jail Marty for his constitutional suggestion?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that while it may be perfectly legal to plead the Fifth Amendment, it can be a crime to urge another to plead it when the urging is for a corrupt purpose or by threat of force.

HOW TO CURE THE COMMON COLD

With colds or with many ailments, the best cure is to prevent. One of the best ways to prevent is by taking our cold shot tablets. A very good degree of immunity to the infection can be obtained by taking them through the cold season. Just one daily for a week then one twice a week for the balance of the cold season.

Kennett Airport To Be Improved

KENNETT - A $10,000 grant from a aviation division, Missouri division of commerce and industrial development, will be matched with a similar amount from the City of Kennett for improvements at Kennett Memorial airport.

Mayor Sol Astrachan was presented the check day by state Senator Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville and state Rep. R. B. "Skinny" King of Malden, both of whom were instrumental in expediting the approval of the plans and appropriation of the funds from the state agency.

Jack McDaniel, chairman of the airport board of directors, said that the $20,000 will be used to resurface the existing runway and the turn arounds at the airport and to make other improvements to meet specifications of the state agency and the federal aviation agency.

Flag Taken From Grave

MALDEN - A new form of vandalism has been started in the Bootheel area, with cemeteries as the targets.

An American Flag has been taken from the grave of a soldier killed in Vietnam, whose body was brought home for burial in the Stanfield Cemetery near Clarkton.

The theft of the Flag by vandals comes on the heels of the destruction of monuments in the Park Cemetery at Malden.

The Flag was taken from the grave of Matthew Theolo Orton, son of Mrs. Cecil Polsgrove of the Clarkton-Gideon area.

Mrs. Polsgrove stated that she will replace the stolen Flag, and that she feels the person, or persons, who took it did not do so for the Flag itself, but for the simple reason of wanting to do something mean and spiteful. She was justifiably hurt by the incident, and further stated that she feels that it is a waste to disrespect the dead, from any cause, but even more so for the boys who gave their lives to protect the lives of others.
